STATE SURVEY ON ELECTION DAY EMERGENCY PROVISIONS

State	Statute	Election Date in Constitution
Florida	After declaring a state of emergency, the governor can "suspend or delay any election." The rescheduled election is held within 10 days. Fla. Stat. § 101.733 (2012)	Yes, but allows election to be "suspended or delayed due to a state of emergency or impending emergency." Fla. Const. art. VI, § 5.
Hawaii	In the event of a natural disaster, chief election officer may postpone an election for no more than 21 days, provided that the postponement "shall not affect the conduct of the election." Haw. Rev. Stat. § 11-92.3 (2012)	Yes, with no emergency provision (conflicts with emergency election statute). Haw. Const. art. II, § 8.
Georgia	After the governor declares a state of emergency, the secretary of state may postpone the date of any election, but must exercise those powers "carefully." The postponement may not exceed 45 days. Ga. Code Ann. § 21-2-50.1 (2012).	Yes, with no emergency provision (conflicts with emergency election statute). Ga. Const. art. III, § II & art. V, § I.
Lousianna	After secretary of state that a state of emergency exists, the governor may suspend or delay an election. The election shall be "rescheduled as soon thereafter as is practicable." La. Rev. Stat. § 18:401.1 (2012).	No, the constitution requires the legislature to "adopt an election code." La. Const. art. XI, § 1.

State	Statute	Election Date in Constitution
Maryland	The governor may declare a state of emergency and, in the emergency proclamation, provide for the postponement of an election. Md. Code Ann., Elec. Law § 8-103 (2012).	Yes, with no emergency provision (conflicts with emergency election statute). Md. Const. art. II, § 2 & art. III, § 7.
New York	A county board of elections in a county struck by disaster may determine that less than 25% of the registered voters actuall voted and designate an additional day for voting no more than 20 days later. N.Y. Elec. Law § 3-108 (2012).	Yes, "unless otherwise directed by the legislature." N.Y. Const. art. III, § 8.
North Carolina	The executive director of the State Board of Elections may conduct a new election where the normal schedule is disrupted by a natural disaster. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-27.1 (2012).	No, the constitution allows the legislature to set election day. N.C. Const. art. II, § 8 & art. III, § 2.

OLRGC
Office of Legislative Research and General Counsel