Corrections Staff – Where do they live?

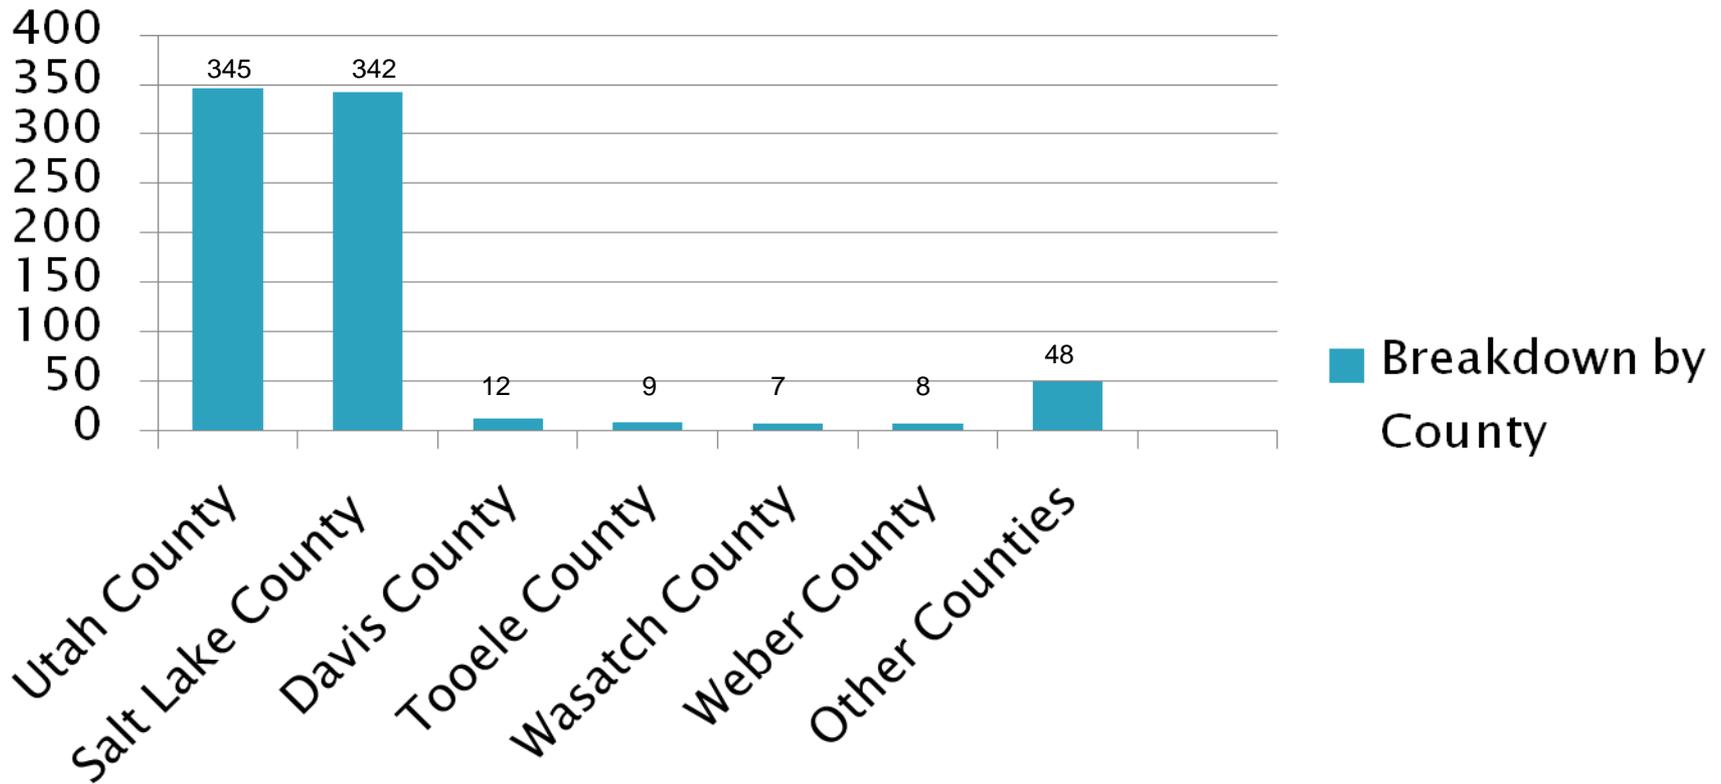

Staff Consideration

“Our employees are our most important resource!”

- ▶ Location of new prison facility(s) should help facilitate an optimal level of staff which will allow for a correctional system and program that corresponds with the high standards and values we expect in this great state of Utah.

Volunteers - Where do they live?

Consideration for 1200 + Volunteers

- Location of new prison facility(s) should help facilitate an optimal level of Volunteers which will allow for a correctional system and program that corresponds with the high standards and values we expect in this great state of Utah.
- Largest number of Volunteers used inside of our facility per capita in the nation. They are essential to our efficient operations, effective programming and proper transition of our inmates back into the communities.
- Volunteers: Location of a facility can have an impact on the ability to get a sufficient number of volunteers to provide services to inmates and maintain current programs for inmates.

Medical Facilities and Associated Cost

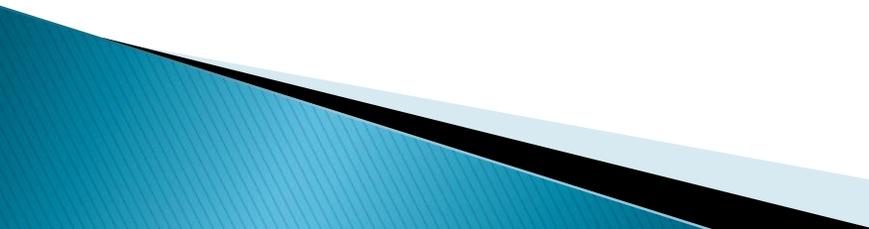

Medical Facilities

- New prison facilities must be located within a reasonable distance of comprehensive medical facilities
- Medical facility must carry a contract with the State of Utah—Many medical providers will not do this
- Must be a Trauma 1 Center—This would cut down on costs as well as expensive transports
 - IMC and U of U are only ones in Utah
 - Location in rural Utah increases costs to receive urgent/critical medical care
 - Virtual healthcare delivery systems can help, but not replace

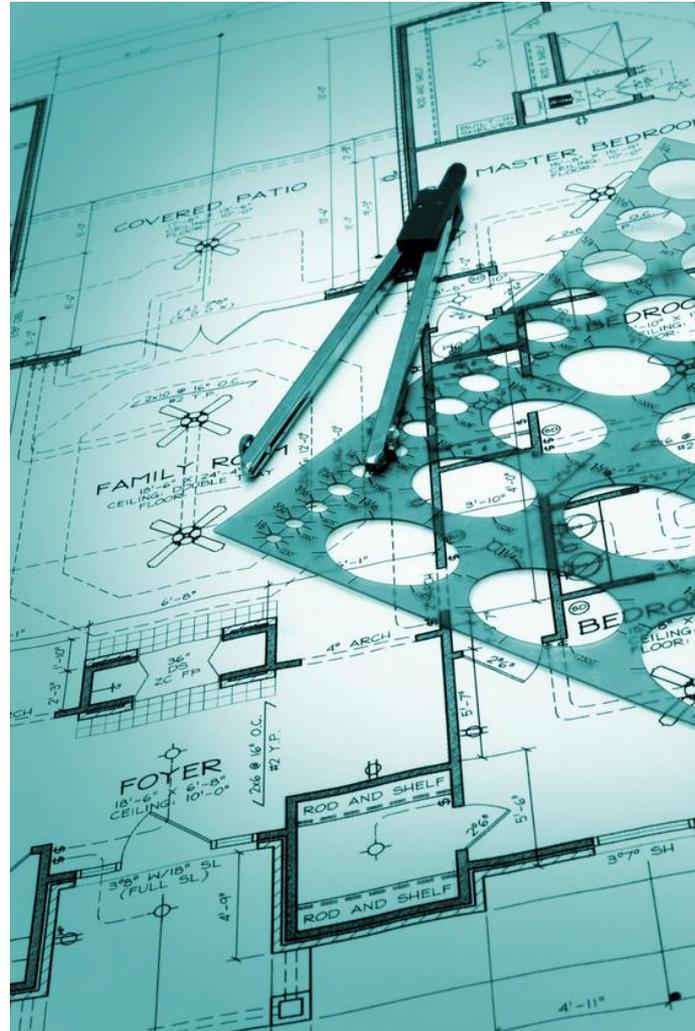

Emergency Transport Cost Draper vs. CUCF

- Life Flight: Costs vary depending on aircraft and type of medical care needed
 - CUCF $25,000
 - Draper $15,000
- Ambulance: cost difference between Draper & CUCF for routine transport
 - CUCF $2,997
 - Draper $ 1,162

Other Medical Considerations

- Ambulance response and transportation
 - Mileage on vehicles
 - Monies spent of fuel for the vehicles
 - Hospital guard requirements (two officers)
 - Aging population and medically reliant inmates
 - Close proximity to a medical facility reduces costs

Criteria for land options and ancillary facilities

Access to Facility

- Location of the new facility(s) should be located near a major highways where access to and from the facility(s) can be done easily and in a timely manner.
 - Employees, volunteers, inmate families, service providers, vendors, etc.
 - Front Runner, TRAX, and Bus routes located by the facility(s) would enhance the use of this cleaner form of transportation and help all entities involved getting to and from the facility(s)
 - Quick (transports) access to courts, hospitals, etc.
 - Safety and security considerations – Emergency Ops

Prison Admin, Training and Board of Pardons

- Having the Department administration building in close proximity to the prison facility(s) would save time, money, as well as help fulfill the needs of the Department to most effectively manage operations, staff and inmates.
 - Having the Department training academy in close proximity to the facility(s) would help cut down time and travel for staff, volunteers, service providers and inmate families for orientation and facility related meetings.
 - Board of Pardons and Parole

Staffing for programming and inmate care

- New prison facilities should be conducive to future inmate programming and criminal justice reform that encourages a reduction in recidivism and successful transition back into our communities.
- Rural locations make it very difficult to fill the wide variety of qualified positions necessary to run an effective correctional facility, due to the small pool of potential candidates.
- We have experienced this at the CUCF site, as we continue to struggle to fill positions such as therapists, medical providers, social workers, physician assistants, correctional officers, nurses, facility specialist, etc.

Surrounding Land Uses

The new prison facility(s) should be located to be compatible with surrounding land uses for the foreseeable future.

- Receive input from local authorities, businesses and residents concerning the site selection
 - Communicate, educate and involve the community
 - Correctional facilities – Good neighbors
 - Construction – aesthetically pleasing and consistent with surroundings

Construction

- Construction should be phased in over a period of time
 - Every reasonable effort should be made to maximize efficiencies and cost savings that result from building and operating newer, more efficient prison facility(s)
- Proper infrastructure should be available or easily accessible.
 - Water, sewer, natural gas, electrical, transportation, etc.
- Proper building design to meet the innovative needs of criminal justice reform and the complex dynamics of professional/innovative corrections practice.
