

State Impact

Costs of including federal lands in declarations of insect infestation emergencies can be handled within existing budgets.

Individual and Business Impact

It is unclear what actions the state could take on federal lands, but there may be some savings to individuals if a declaration of emergency led to better detection and control of insects before they migrated to other lands.

Office of the Legislative Fiscal Analyst