(1) The Legislature finds that:

(2) For a plaintiff to bring a private right of action in a court of this state, the plaintiff shall meet the traditional standing requirement in a private right of action.

(3) If a plaintiff brings a private right of action in a court of this state with a claim asserting the constitutional rights of a third party, the plaintiff shall establish that:

(b) the plaintiff has a substantial relationship with the third party;

(c) there is no way for the third party to bring a private right of action to assert the third party's own constitutional rights; and

(d) the third party's constitutional rights would be weakened without the plaintiff bringing the action.

(4) If the plaintiff is an association bringing a private right of action on behalf of any member of the association, the plaintiff shall plead with particularity that:

(a) the member meets the traditional standing requirement for bringing a private right of action;

(b) the member consents to the association bringing the action on the behalf of the member; and

(c) the participation of the member is not necessary to the resolution of the action.

(5) Notwithstanding Subsection (1) or (2), a plaintiff may bring a private right of action in a court of this state if the plaintiff is authorized by statute to bring the private right of action.

Section 3. Section 26B-7-201 is amended to read:

26B-7-201 (Effective upon governor's approval). Definitions.

As used in this part:

(1) "Ambulatory surgical center" means the same as that term is defined in Section 26B-2-201.

(2) "Carrier" means an infected individual or animal who harbors a specific infectious agent in the absence of discernible clinical disease and serves as a potential source of infection for man. The carrier state may occur in an individual with an infection that is inapparent throughout its course, commonly known as healthy or asymptomatic carrier, or during the incubation period, convalescence, and postconvalescence of an individual with a clinically recognizable disease, commonly known as incubatory carrier or convalescent carrier. Under either circumstance the carrier state may be of short duration, as a temporary or transient carrier, or long duration, as a chronic carrier.

(3) "Communicable disease" means illness due to a specific infectious agent or its toxic products which arises through transmission of that agent or its products from a reservoir to a susceptible host, either directly, as from an infected individual or animal, or indirectly, through an intermediate plant or animal host, vector, or the inanimate environment.

(4) "Communicable period" means the time or times during which an infectious agent may be transferred directly or indirectly from an infected individual to another individual, from an infected animal to a human, or from an infected human to an animal, including arthropods.

(5) "Contact" means an individual or animal having had association with an infected individual, animal, or contaminated environment so as to have had an opportunity to acquire the infection.

(6) "End stage renal disease facility" is as defined in Section 26B-2-201.

(7) (a) "Epidemic" means the occurrence or outbreak in a community or region of cases of an illness clearly in excess of normal expectancy and derived from a common or propagated source.

(b) The number of cases indicating an epidemic will vary according to the infectious agent, size, and type of population exposed, previous experience or lack of exposure to the disease, and time and place of occurrence.

(c) Epidemicity is considered to be relative to usual frequency of the disease in the same area, among the specified population, at the same season of the year.

(8) "General acute hospital" is as defined in Section 26B-2-201.

(9) "Incubation period" means the time interval between exposure to an infectious agent and appearance of the first sign or symptom of the disease in question.

(10) "Infected individual" means an individual who harbors an infectious agent and who has manifest disease or inapparent infection. An infected individual is one from whom the infectious agent can be naturally acquired.

(11) "Infection" means the entry and development or multiplication of an infectious agent in the body of man or animals. Infection is not synonymous with infectious disease; the result may be inapparent or manifest. The presence of living infectious agents on exterior surfaces of the body, or upon articles of apparel or soiled articles, is not infection, but contamination of such surfaces and articles.

(12) "Infectious agent" means an organism such as a virus, rickettsia, bacteria, fungus, protozoan, or helminth that is capable of producing infection or infectious disease.

(13) "Infectious disease" means a disease of man or animals resulting from an infection.

(14) "Isolation" means the separation, for the period of communicability, of infected individuals or animals from others, in such places and under such conditions as to prevent the direct or indirect conveyance of the infectious agent from those infected to those who are susceptible or who may spread the agent to others.

(15) "Local food" means the same as that term is defined in Section 4-1-109.

(16) "Order of constraint" means the same as that term is defined in Section 26B-7-301.

(17) "Quarantine" means the restriction of the activities of well individuals or animals who have been exposed to a communicable disease during its period of communicability to prevent disease transmission.

(18) (a) "School" means a public, private, or parochial nursery school, licensed or unlicensed day care center, child care facility, family care home, Head Start program, kindergarten, elementary, or secondary school through grade 12.

(b) "School" does not mean a micro-education entity or a home-based microschool as those terms are defined in Section 53G-6-201.

(19) "Sexually transmitted disease" means those diseases transmitted through sexual intercourse or any other sexual contact.

(20) "Specialty hospital" is as defined in Section 26B-2-201.

NOTICE TO PERSON MAKING A DECLARATION FOR MENTAL HEALTH TREATMENT

This is an important legal document. It is a declaration that allows, or disallows, mental health treatment. Before signing this document, you should know that:

(1) this document allows you to make decisions in advance about three types of mental health treatment: psychoactive medication, convulsive therapy, and short-term (up to 17 days) admission to a mental health facility;

(2) the instructions that you include in this declaration will be followed only if a court or two physicians believe that you are incapable of otherwise making treatment decisions. Otherwise, you will be considered capable to give or withhold consent for treatment;

(3) you may also appoint a person as your attorney-in-fact to make these treatment decisions for you if you become incapable. The person you appoint has a duty to act consistently with your desires as stated in this document or, if not stated, to make decisions in accordance with what that person believes, in good faith, to be in your best interest. For the appointment to be effective, the person you appoint must accept the appointment in writing. The person also has the right to withdraw from acting as your attorney-in-fact at any time;

(4) this document will continue in effect for a period of three years unless you become incapable of participating in mental health treatment decisions. If this occurs, the directive will continue in effect until you are no longer incapable;

(5) you have the right to revoke this document in whole or in part, or the appointment of an attorney-in-fact, at any time you have not been determined to be incapable. YOU MAY NOT REVOKE THE DECLARATION OR APPOINTMENT WHEN YOU ARE CONSIDERED INCAPABLE BY A COURT OR TWO PHYSICIANS. A revocation is effective when it is communicated to your attending physician or other provider; and

(6) if there is anything in this document that you do not understand, you should ask an attorney to explain it to you. This declaration is not valid unless it is signed by two qualified witnesses who are personally known to you and who are present when you sign or acknowledge your signature.

(b) If the child care expense ceases to be incurred, the parent may suspend making monthly payment of that expense, while the expense is not being incurred, without obtaining a modification of the child support order.

(c) (i) In the absence of a court order to the contrary, a parent who incurs child care expense shall provide written verification of the cost and identity of a child care provider to the other parent upon initial engagement of a provider and thereafter on the request of the other parent.

(6) (a) The court or administrative agency may impute a monthly obligation for child care costs when the court imputes income to a parent who is providing child care for the child so that the parties are not incurring child care costs for the child.

(b) The court shall apply any monthly obligation imputed under Subsection (6)(a) towards any actual child care costs incurred within the same month for the child.

(7) Beginning July 1, 2026, collection of child care costs shall be subject to the requirements of Section 81-6-209.5.

Section 7. Section 81-6-209.5 is enacted to read:

81-6-209.5. Costs of child care -- Ongoing expense for child care -- Office of Recovery Services study item and report.

(1) Beginning July 1, 2026:

(a) a court or administrative agency shall include in a child support order a provision requiring the obligor parent to pay a reasonable ongoing expense for child care to assist with the child care expenses for the obligor parent's child;

(b) if a previous child support order does not exist, a substantial change in circumstances has occurred, or a petition to modify a child support order as described in Section 81-6-212 is filed, the court determining the amount of the ongoing expense for child care shall require each party to file a proposed award of an ongoing expense for child care before the court enters or modifies a child support order;

(c) (i) a court or administrative agency shall use guidelines or cost tables prepared by the Office of Recovery Services as a rebuttable presumption in establishing or modifying the amount of the ongoing expense for child care;

(ii) the court or administrative agency shall order that:

(A) the amount set for the ongoing expense for child care be payable periodically, either monthly, or on a schedule determined by the court or administrative agency;

(B) the payment for an ongoing expense for child care commence on a specific date or circumstance; and

(C) if appropriate, the ongoing expense for child care payments cease on a specified date or circumstance; and

(iii) the amount of an ongoing expense for child care, the frequency of ongoing expense for child care payments, and the commencement and termination of ongoing expense for child care payments as determined under Subsections (1)(c)(i)and (1)(c)(ii) are rebuttable upon:

(A) an agreement of the parties that is acceptable to the court;

(B) the court's determination that the evidence presented favors a different amount or schedule; or

(C) a showing by a preponderance of the evidence that a different amount or schedule is in the best interest of the child;

(d) unless otherwise provided by the court, the ongoing expense for child care shall terminate when the child turns 13 years old; and

(e) when determining an amount that a parent may owe for an ongoing expense for child care, the court:

(i) shall give the obligor parent credit for any ongoing expense for child care payments made during the relevant time; and

(ii) may set the amount at zero upon a showing by a preponderance of the evidence that child care expenses will not be incurred.

(2) The Office of Recovery Services shall:

(a) study the costs, parental income considerations, and practical and procedural issues related to establishing a requirement to provide an ongoing expense for child care for a child who is subject to a child support order;

(b) based upon the study results:

(i) prepare guidelines or a cost table to be used for the calculation of the presumed amount of an ongoing expense for child care in compliance with the requirements of this section;

(ii) propose guidelines or practices to recommend how often periodic ongoing expense for child care payments should be made;

(iii) propose guidelines or practices to recommend when ongoing expense for child care payments should commence and when they should cease; and

(iv) propose all statutory and procedural changes that are required to change the presumption from collecting child care costs through receipt-based reimbursement as provided under Section 81-6-209, to a new presumption that all new and modified child support orders shall contain a provision requiring child care costs to be paid by means of an ongoing expense for child care; and

(c) report on the study items described in Subsections (2)(a) and (b) to the Health and Human Services Interim Committee on or before the October 2025 interim meeting.

(4) for a permissible purpose stated in the account agreement; and

(5) subject to a contingency.

Section 6. Section 7-28-105 is enacted to read:

7-28-105. Permissible purpose.

(1) A special deposit must serve at least one permissible purpose stated in the account agreement from the time the special deposit is created in the account agreement until termination of the special deposit.

(2) If, before termination of the special deposit, the bank or a court determines the special deposit no longer satisfies Subsection (1), Sections 7-28-107 through 7-28-110 cease to apply to any funds deposited in the special deposit after the special deposit ceases to satisfy Subsection (1).

(3) If, before termination of a special deposit, the bank determines the special deposit no longer satisfies Subsection (1), the bank may take action the bank believes is necessary under the circumstances, including terminating the special deposit.

Section 7. Section 7-28-106 is enacted to read:

(1) Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the bank is obligated to pay a beneficiary if there are sufficient actually and finally collected funds in the balance of the special deposit.

(2) Except as provided in Subsection (3), the obligation to pay the beneficiary is excused if the funds available in the special deposit are insufficient to cover such payment.

(3) (a) Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, if the funds available in the special deposit are insufficient to cover an obligation to pay a beneficiary, a beneficiary may elect to be paid the funds that are available or, if there is more than one beneficiary, a pro rata share of the funds available.

(4) Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the obligation of the bank obligated to pay a beneficiary is immediately due and payable.

(5) The bank may discharge the bank's obligation under this section by:

(a) crediting another transaction account of the beneficiary; or

Section 8. Section 7-28-107 is enacted to read:

7-28-107. Property interest of depositor or beneficiary.

(1) Neither a depositor nor a beneficiary has a property interest in a special deposit.

7-28-108. When creditor process enforceable against bank.

(1) Subject to Subsection (2), creditor process with respect to a special deposit is not enforceable against the bank holding the special deposit.

(a) is served on the bank;

(b) provides sufficient information to permit the bank to identify the depositor or the beneficiary from the bank's books and records; and

(c) gives the bank a reasonable opportunity to act on the process.

(3) (a) Creditor process served on a bank before the creditor process is enforceable against the bank under Subsection (2) does not create a right of the creditor against the bank or a duty of the bank to the creditor.

(b) Other law determines whether creditor process creates a lien enforceable against the beneficiary on a contingent interest of a beneficiary, including a depositor as a beneficiary, even if not enforceable against the bank.

Section 10. Section 7-28-109 is enacted to read:

7-28-109. Injunction or similar relief.

A court may enjoin, or grant similar relief that would have the effect of enjoining, a bank from paying a depositor or beneficiary only

(1) Except as provided in Subsection (2) or (3), a bank may not exercise a right of recoupment or set off against a special deposit.

(3) The bank holding a special deposit has a duty to a beneficiary to comply with the account agreement and this chapter.

(4) (a) If the bank holding a special deposit does not comply with the account agreement or this chapter, the bank is liable to a depositor or beneficiary only for damages proximately caused by the noncompliance.

(b) Except as provided by other law of this state, the bank is not liable for consequential, special, or punitive damages.

(5) The bank holding a special deposit may rely on records presented in compliance with the account agreement to determine whether the bank is obligated to pay a beneficiary.

(6) (a) If the account agreement requires payment on presentation of a record, the bank shall determine within a reasonable time whether the record is sufficient to require payment.

(b) If the agreement requires action by the bank on presentation of a record, the bank is not liable for relying in good faith on the genuineness of the record if the record appears on the record's face to be genuine.

(7) Unless the account agreement provides otherwise, the bank is not required to determine whether a permissible purpose stated in the agreement continues to exist.

Section 13. Section 7-28-112 is enacted to read:

7-28-112. Term and termination.

(1) Unless otherwise provided in the account agreement, a special deposit terminates five years after the date the special deposit was first funded.

(2) Unless otherwise provided in the account agreement, if the bank cannot identify or locate a beneficiary entitled to payment when the special deposit is terminated, and a balance remains in the special deposit, the bank shall pay the balance to the depositor or depositors as a beneficiary or beneficiaries.

(3) A bank that pays the remaining balance as provided under Subsection (2) has no further obligation with respect to the special deposit.
