THREE-MEMBER CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING

The Utah Legislature adopted a plan that has three congressional districts. The ideal population for each of Utah's three Congressional districts is 744,390. The Legislature adopted an allowable deviation standard of ± 0.5 percent from the ideal congressional district population. In the new plan adopted by the Legislature, the district populations range from 744,389 in District 1 to 744,390 in Districts 2 and 3. The total deviation is 0.0 percent, which is within the ± 0.5 percent guideline.

The following is a current incumbent list. The population summary and detailed maps on subsequent pages show the congressional redistricting plan adopted by the Utah Legislature.

FOUR-MEMBER CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING

Following the 2000 Census, the State of Utah challenged the federal apportionment of congressional seats based on Census Bureau counting methodologies. As a result, Utah may obtain a fourth congressional district.

The Utah Legislature also adopted maps and plans containing four congressional districts so it would be prepared for either a three-member or four-member congressional district. If Utah obtains a fourth congressional district, the ideal population for each of the four congressional districts is 558,292. The Legislature adopted an allowable deviation standard of ± 0.5 percent from the ideal congressional district population. In the plan adopted by the Legislature, the district populations range from 558,292 in Districts 1, 2, and 3 to 558,293 in District 4. The total deviation is 0.0 percent, which is within the ± 0.5 percent guideline.
