

Davis Behavioral Health

Davis Behavioral Health is a private non-profit corporation providing behavioral health services to residents of Davis County. Unlike other behavioral health providers, Davis Behavioral Health serves people who cannot afford to pay and who otherwise may not receive help.

Comprehensive and integrated behavioral health services are available for adults, adolescents, and children; our wide range of programs and services allow for specific and appropriate treatment. Davis Behavioral Health works with those seeking treatment for themselves or a loved one, as well as with referring health or mental health professionals. Davis Behavioral Health will not deny services due to inability to pay or on the basis of race, color, sex, national origin, disability, religion, age or sexual orientation. Insurance is accepted, including Medicaid and Medicare.

Adults who are severely and persistently mentally ill or children with severe emotional disturbance enter into DBH traditional services. Others are offered services through the DBH Living Well program that provides evaluation, brief treatment and medication management consultation. All Davis County residents have access to prevention programs such as anxiety, depression, relationship and stress management.

Davis Behavioral Health, is a Utah not-for-profit corporation with an operating budget of 19 million.
