Since issuing the Certificates of Election I have become aware of two items:

First, I have been informed that, pursuant to Utah Code Section 20A-1-503(2), Fred C. Cox was appointed to fill the vacancy created in House District 32 following the resignation of Ron Bigelow.

Second, I have determined, pursuant to a request made under Utah Code Section 36-1-204, that Craig Frank resides within the boundaries of House District 27 and not House District 57.

Sincerely,
Greg S. Bell
Lieutenant Governor

REMARKS BY SPEAKER REBECCA LOCKHART

Like many University of Utah students, Mattie Hughes was a firebrand. She was outspoken and passionate. She was independent — washing dishes, doing laundry and secretarial jobs to work her own way through school.

She majored in Chemistry, and at age 25 launched her career as a doctor.

Today, she'd blend in among the U's 30,000 students. Except that "Mattie" Hughes went to school in the 1880s and the school was known then as the University of Deseret.

Hughes would go on to establish a training school for nurses, become a resident physician and marry Angus Munn Cannon. We now know her as Martha Hughes Cannon. She was drawn to politics, and felt so strongly about the issues of her day that she ran for office against her own husband in 1896. She defeated him and became the first woman in our nation to be elected to a State senate.

Martha Cannon may not have recognized the significance of her influence, but surely we recognize it now: She was a leader. She was the kind of leader who helped build this great State into the envy of our Nation: A safe environment for parents and their children. Fertile ground for businesses and their jobs. A desirable destination for visitors and their dreams.

Today, at the opening of the 59th Legislature ask yourselves: How can we be effective legislators? How can we be leaders?

A leader learns to navigate the legislative process. A leader reads the bills that come before him. A leader listens more than talks. A leader is a good example. A leader is respectful to Utah citizens who take the time to approach him on an issue.

Leaders are elected to understand the proper role of government and meet the looming challenges facing our State. In Utah, there is a legacy from past legislatures filled with many accolades including best managed State in America. However, we cannot just stand on the accomplishments of the past in order to build Utah's future. There is too much at stake. The decisions we make today will affect the generations of tomorrow. Our children and grandchildren will reap the consequences of our actions. As a State we face real challenges. We must address those challenges head on. When we do that, we enable our posterity to create their own bright future.

Over the next seven weeks, we will debate immigration reform and health care reform. We will address an economy that needs less government, not more while it recovers. We have an education system that needs attending to and a dangerous $300 million problem known as structural imbalance.

There are fundamental principles upon which this country was founded. Federalism and State sovereignty. Our inspired United States Constitution limits the powers of the Federal Government. Are there instances when the federal government intrudes upon our State sovereignty? Is Utah willing to tell the federal government to go away when it oversteps its authority? Are we willing to heed the advice of Thomas Jefferson, who said "A government big enough to supply you with everything you need, is a government big enough to take away everything that you have"? I believe that together we can find answers to these questions.

Because we come from all walks of life, we have different world views and different ideas for solutions. On one hand we have Representative Fred Cox. Our newest member has been a representative for just two weeks and has yet to debate a bill, much less vote on one. On the other hand is Representative Neal Hendrickson, who has been around for over 1,000 weeks and has cast tens of thousands of votes.

We have Representative John Mathis, whose district is responsible for most of Utah's oil and gas production. And we have Representative Larry Wiley, who actually produces and uses his own bio–diesel. Our youngest members — Representatives Ryan Wilcox and Jeremy Peterson could double their ages and still be younger — or should I say — less distinguished than our indomitable Representatives Kay McIff and Mel Brown. These differences give us strength as leaders and as a legislative body.

And so I encourage lively, energetic and passionate debate. I invite principled stands and the expression of deeply held convictions. I encourage you to be advocates and allies. But above all I encourage you to be statesmen and stateswomen. Because whether you find yourself soaring from victory or grounded in defeat, remember that the people who surround you in this chamber are your colleagues, your friends, your legislative family. We'll have our differing points of view — but never forget the bonds that unite us to work for policies that benefit the people of Utah. This Capitol and the legislative process will continue long after we are gone, but for this moment we serve together as Utah Representatives within these hallowed halls. It is our obligation to craft the policy and appropriate a budget that is best for the citizens of our great State.

While you're walking the corridors of power and being courted by the powerful, you need to remember how you got here. You were chosen to lead by farmers and mechanics, attorneys and doctors, software programmers, teachers, and homemakers.

Even more than the respect we give each other, these constituents have the right to our time and attention. They have a right to an explanation for why we vote the way we do. They have a right to know how the laws we pass will affect them and their children, and future generations.

It was Mattie Hughes Cannon's eye toward future generations that made her work so hard 120 years ago. Mother, suffragette, doctor, wife and politician, she led the way for all of us.

On this, the opening day of Utah's 59th Legislature, I encourage you to consider your responsibilities as a leader. Ponder your commitment to the people of Utah. Let the history books record that this House of Representatives fearlessly faced difficult issues, carefully resolved fiscal problems and faithfully upheld cherished Utah values.

Thank you.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

On motion of Representative Dee, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole, with the Speaker as Chairman, for the purpose of hearing from Chief Justice Christine Durham on the State of the Judiciary.

REMARKS BY CHIEF JUSTICE CHRISTINE M. DURHAM

It is a pleasure to participate in Utah's tradition of an annual invitation to the judiciary – the third branch – to report to the legislature on our circumstances, accomplishments and challenges. I appreciate the courtesy of the leadership of this body and the gracious attendance of its members.

I am joined this afternoon by the members of the Supreme Court: Associate Chief Justice Matthew Durrant, and associate justices Ronald Nehring, Jill Parrish and Thomas Lee. This is Justice Lee's first opportunity to participate in this occasion and I would like to express publicly the court's appreciation for the work of the Governor and the Senate in bringing us up to a full complement and sending us such an able colleague. Justice Lee has already contributed to the efficiency and quality of our work and has become a friend as well as a colleague.

Also present today are the members of Utah's Judicial Council, the governing body for the judicial branch, which had its regular monthly meeting this morning in Salt Lake City. The Council has constitutional authority for the Rules of Judicial Administration, the preparation and monitoring of the budget, and the development of policy for the judiciary, while the Supreme Court is responsible for rules of evidence and procedure and regulation of the practice of law. The Council members are elected by each of the trial and appellate court levels in the state, along with one lawyer appointed by the State Bar, and dedicate a great deal of their time and talent to the oversight of Utah's judiciary. I would also like to publicly recognize the work of the Council over the last two years in responding boldly to our fiscal challenges and charting a course that has been both responsible and innovative, as I will share with you in these remarks. The Administrative Office of the Courts, headed by the extremely able Dan Becker, serves as staff to the Judicial Council and is responsible for implementing Council policy throughout the state courts. The Justice Courts are locally operated and funded, but the Administrative Office provides technical and educational support to them and they participate in the work of the Council.

I would like to use my time today to say a few words about the context in which state courts in general are functioning, and then to focus on our situation in Utah. I would be remiss, however, if I did not begin by emphasizing the degree to which we in the judiciary understand and appreciate the history of collaboration and support between our branch and yours in recent years. We know that you have faced unprecedented pressures in funding state government, and we are grateful for the fact that you and your staff have listened to our ideas, understood our mission and its import to the citizens of Utah, and been creative and extraordinarily helpful in finding ways to keep the courts open and functioning at the highest levels possible. We thank you.

In the last several decades, the almost exclusive focus in this country on study of the federal courts, which began in the middle of the last century, has shifted. It is increasingly understood that the state courts are the foundational institutions of our system of justice. This is true for two reasons: first, it is in the state courts that the legal problems of everyday American citizens are resolved, and second, the vast majority of all legal problems of any kind are dealt with in state courts. To illustrate the second point, there is a striking set of numbers I would like to share with you. For the most recent year for which we have final estimates, the total filings in all of the federal courts in the country (trial and appellate, including the U.S. Supreme Court), excluding bankruptcy cases, was approximately 385,000. For the same year filings in state courts, not including traffic cases, were over 47 million. What these numbers mean is that something over 95 percent of the cases filed in the United States are handled in the state courts. To bring this closer to home, every business day in Utah we have 4,500 new filings, or over 950,000 new cases every year. That's about 1 case for every 2.8 citizens. Our annual filings in Utah are nearly three times the number of federal cases filed in all federal courts in the entire country.

Of even more significance, however, is the kind of cases these filings represent. State courts decide where children will live after divorce and how much is due for their support, whether a tenant is evicted, whether a small business can collect its unpaid accounts, whether a property owner gets a zoning variance. It is in state courts that vulnerable citizens like children and the disabled can be protected from exploitation and abuse, that troubled families seek final resolution and fair disposition of their disputes, that persons who disrupt the social order by criminal behavior are held accountable, that property owners end disputes without violence, that commercial and business transactions gone awry get resolved, and that citizens can seek redress from government over-reaching when it occurs. This list could go on for pages—it is the merest summary of the kinds of human problems that depend on a fair and impartial forum, open to all, for their solutions.

Courts are not perfect; they are human institutions subject to the frailties of all such institutions. But in our constitutional democracy Americans have placed in them our best hopes for preserving a system of justice and the rule of law. One needs only to try to imagine life in their absence—or study places in the world where there are no fair and impartial courts—to understand how much we depend on them to preserve peace, order, safety, and the rights our constitutions and laws guarantee. That is the core mission of state courts; it requires constant vigilance to shore them up, preserve and protect them, and demand from them the highest standards of fairness, impartiality, and performance. Anything less risks the erosion of the quality of our civic life.

The formal mission of Utah's state courts is “[t]o provide the people an open, fair, efficient, and independent system for the advancement of justice under the law.” Although Article VIII of the Utah constitution establishes the authority and structure of the judicial “department” of state government, Article I, Utah's Declaration of Rights, contains a significant part of our constitutional charge, directed specifically to civil justice, in Section 11: “All courts shall be open, and every person for an injury done to him in his person, property or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law, which shall be administered without denial or unnecessary delay...” This mission and this charge have informed our decision-making in response to needed budget cuts in 2002, 2009 and 2010. We have attempted in our reductions and restructuring to honor our core constitutional functions, to maintain access to the courts with no “denial or delay.”

I do not want today to talk about our budget; instead I want to talk with you about our management of the public's resources. The Utah Constitution informs our resource allocation, as do state statutes, but what do our citizens want and expect from us? What is good government when it comes to the operation of the courts? Our view is that good government implies, and the public demands, that we organize ourselves efficiently, that we focus our resources on functions that directly benefit the public, that we take advantage of the best research, information and technology to change and adapt our system to best practices, that we measure our productivity, and that we hold ourselves accountable to these principles. We believe that we have done all of these things, that we are an example of good government.

As I have often mentioned, Utah's court system is viewed nationally as a model for its governance structure, its development of performance standards and public reporting, and its innovation in using technology to improve efficiency and reduce costs. We are currently engaged in a major re-structuring of our “business model,” if I may use that term, and I would like to share some of the details with you today. We have in the past two to three years made the significant permanent cuts necessary to balance our budget, and we have identified a strategy to use what remains so as to achieve the greatest possible system efficiencies. In fact, we are in the process of making fundamental changes in almost every part of our court system. We have used the opportunity presented by the economic crisis to advance structural changes that might otherwise not have been possible or palatable and we have advanced innovative strategies at a pace that almost certainly would not have been feasible in normal times. We are changing how cases are filed, how clerks process them, how judges view them, how we communicate about them, and how they are litigated, heard and resolved.

As we make these fundamental changes, we are also very fortunate to be able to constantly measure the impact of the changes. We have a comprehensive set of performance measures that we use as a “dashboard” to indicate our speed, direction and productivity. These measures have been in place for several years now, and they allow us to quantify, rather than speculate about, the impact of recent resource cuts, resource allocation, and system restructuring. We believe these measures show that while our reduced resources and increased caseloads have negatively impacted court users, the restructuring and innovations that we are in the middle of are having the desired effect of mitigating that impact. For example, last year I talked about our clerical restructuring project, which replaced traditional hierarchal management structure with teams of “generalists” on the clerical staff. We also did away with the archaic practice of compensating clerks based on simple longevity, and instead now pay them based on demonstrated competency and skill acquisition. This has enabled us to provide the same service to more court users with fewer people. This year I want to mention two other major reform efforts, electronic access and civil practice reform.

As of today, our non-judicial workforce has been downsized permanently by nine percent, while our case filings—for the third straight year—are 16 percent above their pre-recession 2008 levels. Everyone is concerned these days about having to do more with less; in the courts we are worried about doing far more with much less. So what are we doing? It would be extremely difficult, I think, to find any operation more paper intensive than courts; tens of millions of pieces of paper are handled multiple times by multiple people in Utah’s courts annually. This is about to change radically and rapidly as we move to what we are calling “e-everything.” Plans for this shift have been underway for some time, but our budget losses and personnel cuts have persuaded us to accelerate the process dramatically. We are moving to the use of an electronic record for all court business at all court levels—something that has yet to be done in any state court system. As you can imagine this is stressful for our judges, our court clerks, and particularly our information technology staff, but I am very proud of the dedication and innovation being shown throughout our system.

The electronic record project, amazing as it is, is only part of “e–everything.” The courts have already launched e–filing of civil cases, e–payment of fees, fines and restitution, e–documents, e–warrants and e–citations. All of these systems have been initiated statewide, so that even when a case is not filed electronically, its documents are being scanned for the creation of an electronic record. The courts have also completed development of a system for e–filing of criminal cases and we will be ready to implement it as soon as the Prosecutors Information Management System (PIMS) is available for testing.

How will the electronic record change the way we do business? Clerks will no longer have to create paper files and manually input data; the file will be created automatically as electronic documents are entered. Electronic payments eliminate the need for manual bookkeeping: processing receipts, disbursements and recording all occur through a banking transaction. Clerks will no longer have to locate and pull voluminous paper files for court hearings or information retrieval; instead, the electronic record can be accessed instantaneously by multiple parties at multiple locations at any time. Preparation of trial court records for appellate review, which used to be a time–consuming task for court clerks, can now be done automatically and instantaneously. Among other things, the electronic record will mean significant savings in supplies and records storage equipment and space. For the court user and the average citizen, electronic access to court records means no more trips to the courthouse to conduct business that doesn’t require a hearing.

The next area I wanted to mention has to do with reforms in the arena of civil litigation. The Supreme Court’s Advisory Committee on the Rules of Civil Procedure has been working for the past two years on a radical restructuring of the process and theory of discovery in civil lawsuits. Discovery is the process by which parties obtain from each other the information and evidence they need to settle or try their cases, and it has become in recent decades the major cause of expense and delay in civil courts throughout the country. Our existing discovery rules are based on the federal rules, which were conceived at a time when copy machines didn’t even exist yet, let alone computers. Information looks very different now than it did then, so we are looking at major changes in the Rules of Civil Procedure that we hope will streamline the process dramatically, reducing delay and cost, and thereby improving access to and confidence in the courts.

As dramatic as the civil litigation reform may be, I understand that it probably sounds like “inside baseball” to most of you, so let me give one final example of how we are fine tuning even our most effective programs to be sure they are as effective as they can be. As we have traveled the state meeting with many of you in your districts, one topic that came up in every area is drug courts. Out of curiosity, by a show of hands, how many of you have attended a drug court or spoken at a drug court hearing or graduation? For those who haven't done so, you have an open invitation to attend one at any time. I promise you that you will feel your time was well spent.

Drug Courts, or in the broader description, Problem Solving Courts (which now include courts specializing in the needs of the mentally ill, veterans, the homeless and persons charged with DUI), are probably the biggest innovation in sentencing in the last hundred years. The idea is that sentencing needs to address the root cause of criminal behavior in order to affect recidivism. As you know, we operate these courts at all court levels, and the research now is very clear on these courts; they have the most effect on high risk/high need offenders, in other words our most serious, drug addicted defendants. On the national level, those involved in Problem Solving Courts have agreed on 10 key components to drug court effectiveness.

By rule, courts must apply to the Judicial Council for initial approval to operate a Problem Solving Court. That process permits the Council to determine if the applicant is complying with the 10 key components. In addition to the front-end oversight, the Judicial Council has also developed an on-going certification process, involving one of our senior judges, who operated a drug court for many years, who is doing on-site observations of every drug court (we have 52 statewide) to determine if the court is operating as it should. Not only does this process provide oversight and assistance to these courts, but it also ensures that we are operating them in the most effective way possible.

Almost all of the state funding for drug courts comes through the Division of Substance Abuse and Mental Health, so we have worked very closely with them to be sure only the most effective drug court programs receive state support. I hope you agree that the process I described reflects the importance the Judicial Council places on program effectiveness and, while the funding doesn't come to the courts, I suggest that drug courts are exactly the kind of proven, effective program that warrants the strong continuing support of this body.

For all the good news about these innovations and changes, however, I don't want to minimize the pressures that they are exerting on all parts of our system, and on litigants, lawyers and other court users. Our greatest strength is our people—judges, clerks, probation officers, and administrative staff. Our system for selecting judges provides our state with an outstanding judiciary. They are being relied upon to handle more and more cases, and are working hard not to let the additional work result in delay. Our judges and staff have responded in a way we can all be proud of. The major transitions in progress would be challenging in the best of times, and these are not the best of times. The complete transition will take several years, but we are well underway, with all the major components in place.

The status of these major changes is, however, dependent on our ability to continue to design, test and implement sweeping solutions to complicated problems and is therefore somewhat fragile. Our budget structure in the judicial branch leaves us with limited options. Ninety-three percent of our General Fund budget is people, so any further resource reductions would have to come from our existing court staff—the very resource we are depending on to implement our solutions. We know you are well aware of these challenges and we look forward to the work of the legislative session as we address them together.

Last year I reported that the state of our judiciary was strong, but challenged. This year I would amend that assessment by reporting that we are responding to the challenge by relying on the strength of our people and on a willingness to critique and change how we conduct court business. With your help, we will emerge from this difficult transition in a position to continue protecting access to our courts and delivering timely justice, while at the same time improving services with significantly fewer resources. We think that is our fundamental constitutional mission, and, perhaps more importantly, that is good government.

Thank you and our best wishes as you conduct the important work of our state for the next 45 days.

President Waddoups announced that a quorum of the House of Representatives and the Senate was present.

President Waddoups appointed a Joint Committee comprised of Senators Scott Jenkins, Wayne Niederhauser, and Ross Romero, and Representatives Brad Dee, Greg Hughes, and David Litvack to notify Governor Gary R. STATE-OF-THE-STATE ADDRESS
GOVERNOR GARY R. HERBERT

Lt. Governor Bell; President Waddoups; Speaker Lockhart; Members of the Utah Legislature; Members of my Cabinet; Utah Supreme Court Justices; The State's First Lady, My Wife Jeanette; and my fellow Utahns:

It is indeed an honor and a pleasure to join you in this historic chamber this evening. On the north wall of this room appears a tribute to the women of Utah and those who worked to secure the right of women to vote. Over the years many have pioneered the way in this hall, including our first female governor, Olene Walker. But tonight marks the first time a woman leads the Utah House of Representatives. I am delighted to be the first Governor to say, "Congratulations, Madame Speaker!"

It is fitting and right, at a time of international conflict, that we recognize those who defend and protect us, both on the battlefield abroad and here at home. We appreciate your sacrifice and we honor your service. One whose life was nearly lost is Brody Young, a State Park Ranger and, more importantly, husband of Wendy Young, and father to Stryder, Jade, and Jagger. On the night of November 19th, while on patrol at Poison Spider Mesa trailhead, he was shot nine times. I spoke with him earlier today. He is healing and his spirits are strong. While we highlight Brody for his heroism, we also acknowledge the service and sacrifice of all other public safety officers and their families. Tonight Brody and his family are watching this broadcast on television. Please join me in honoring Brody and all our dedicated peace officers.

Last night our President delivered the State of the Union. Tonight, we focus on Utah. I am pleased to say that despite our challenges, the state of our State is strong and its course is sure. It is my desire that the actions we take in this capitol, this session, will keep our state on the road to recovery and return Utah to prosperity.

As I survey this great State of Utah, I recognize we have challenges and opportunities. While many states face multi-billion dollar deficits, we're fortunate Utah's budget, though difficult, is manageable. Our current unemployment is too high and many households are hurting. Still, Utah's unemployment rate continues to be better than the national average. I understand that more Utah families now rely on food stamps, and too many homes have been lost to foreclosure, and we're not out of the woods yet. But the good news is the outlook is improving. Fewer people are filing new unemployment claims, housing starts are expected to increase and the market is showing increased consumer and business confidence.

As a state, we are focused on getting people back to work. We have made the tough choices. We streamlined services, we modernized, and we became more efficient. When I began my service to the State as Lt. Governor, there was one state employee for every 122 Utah residents, but thanks to the ability of our great state employees to do more with less, there is now one state employee for every 136 Utahns. We've done so while continuing to provide the basic services people need—while keeping taxes low.

My father was a building contractor. When he was building homes, he always made certain the foundation was strong, the walls were sturdy, and the roof never leaked. This session, we are tasked by the citizens – the people who hired us to do the job – to make certain the “house” we call Utah is solid and strong. Like any good contractor, before he took on a new project my father asked a few basic questions: Are we following the blueprints? Will the project pencil out? Are we building what the customer wants? I'd like us to keep those questions in mind as we focus on the State's road to recovery and our return to prosperity.

Like any sound structure, Utah's future prosperity will be built upon four cornerstones – education, energy development, job creation, and Utah's ability to solve its own problems. EDUCATION is the first cornerstone because an educated workforce is not just critical, it is essential for a prosperous economy. One of Utah's strengths is that we have the fastest growing population in the country. This impacts our classrooms. In the past two years alone, we added over 25,000 new elementary school students. But due to declining tax revenues, our schools and our teachers had to be innovative to absorb that growth. However, we can add only so much water to the soup without diluting the quality. This year we will add another 14,700 students.

However, the good news is that for the first time in three years, because of economic expansion, we have the opportunity to fund this growth in our public and charter schools. Therefore, in this legislative session, funding our children's education MUST BE OUR NUMBER ONE BUDGET PRIORITY.

Last year at the State of the State, I announced the creation of my Education Excellence Commission. This Commission, which I chair, includes leaders and experts across the state and across all disciplines, including six of your fellow legislators. Together, we spent hundreds of hours developing this long-term action plan that you now have on your desks. The vision of this plan is that by the year 2020, 66% of Utahns, ages 20 to 64 will have a postsecondary degree or professional certification.

The pattern holds true from Dixie State to Utah State –higher education success translates into economic success. For example, the University of Utah is not just a new PAC-12 contender on the playing field; it is a national champion in the classroom and in the laboratory. Last year, the U of U surpassed MIT to take the top spot in the country for the number of start-up companies with their beginnings in university research. This extraordinary goal of 66% by 2020 is indeed ambitious – and it will not be accomplished overnight. But we must be bold and we must begin NOW.

That is why this action plan also includes eight specific proposals, the initial steps recommended unanimously by the Commission members, proposals that I ask you to address this session. These initiatives include ensuring reading proficiency by the third grade, and matching classroom instruction to real-world jobs—especially in the areas of science, engineering and math.

The pathway to success in post-secondary education, which leads to economic prosperity as an adult, begins in elementary school as a child. That is why another of the eight proposals focuses on all-day kindergarten. I have listened as teachers and parents explain how this optional, Utah-crafted program helps our youngest, most at-risk students, and improves their ability to meet their future job-ready. I have also seen the data. The message is clear – investing in our children today, benefits all of us tomorrow.

A second cornerstone of Utah's economic viability is one that we have taken for granted far too long—low-cost and reliable supplies of ENERGY. Utah businesses compete better and are more successful because Utah has lower energy costs than most other states. Companies relocate to Utah – and, therefore, create jobs – because of Utah’s affordable and stable electricity. Indeed, the cost of electricity in Utah is among the lowest of any state and the price of a kilowatt-hour has held steady for the past twenty years.

Equally important, Utah’s energy industries create tens of thousands of jobs, and pour hundreds of millions of dollars into our economy. Tax revenues from energy-related jobs amounted to over 200 million dollars last year alone. Utah has been abundantly blessed with massive reserves of energy resources. We are a state that is largely energy independent. In fact, we are a net exporter of electricity. While many other states, and indeed our nation, have compromised or abandoned their energy independence, here in Utah, WE WILL NOT!

We simply cannot put the economic fate of future generations in peril by relying upon others for our energy needs. But in the world of energy, we must face new realities, we must confront new challenges, and we must envision and act upon new opportunities! Last year I called for the development of a ten-year strategic energy plan for Utah. To oversee the process, I assembled many of Utah’s brightest and most talented minds from the energy arena. We sought and received a strong public response from many stakeholders in public hearings around the state. Soon, each of you will receive the final report.

There are major energy challenges ahead. For example, too few capital improvements have been made to Utah’s energy infrastructure. Billions of dollars will be required to upgrade and expand Utah’s electricity generation and transmission systems. Our reliance upon traditional fuels is being challenged. Yes, renewable energies such as wind, solar, and geothermal, will play an expanding and important role. However, the “base load”– the very foundation of Utah’s energy–will, most assuredly, be provided by either fossil or nuclear fuels. Every state has to face that simple reality, and more than 30 states have chosen to include nuclear power in their energy portfolio. We must begin substantive debate and deliberation of whether there is a place for nuclear energy in Utah.

Just as I know of Utah’s extraordinary natural resources, I am convinced we have even greater human resources. In Utah, we have some of the best energy minds and the greatest expertise of any place in the world. Our universities and industries must rise to the occasion and create new technologies that will make our traditional resources more economically and environmentally viable. In Utah, we have a spirit of technical innovation and pioneer determination that will enable us to keep energy affordable, supplies stable, and our economic future secure.

The third cornerstone essential to our return to prosperity is all about JOBS. My vision for economic development is that Utah will lead the nation as the best performing economy and be recognized as a premier global business destination.

In Utah, we know, it is the private sector, not government, that creates jobs. And those jobs are being created through the expansion of homegrown Utah companies, as well as new companies relocating to our state. Some of the most recognized businesses in the world now call Utah home – companies like Adobe, Proctor and Gamble, eBay, Litehouse Foods, Disney, Goldman Sachs, and the Royal Bank of Scotland, to name just a few. Additionally, local Utah businesses are expanding, like Petersen Inc, Nelson Laboratories, Lineagen, Merit Medical, Edwards Lifesciences, IMFlash, and Overstock.com.

To accelerate this job creation across the state, we must focus on three key areas: First, we must increase access to capital, for our small and start up businesses. We must ensure that the Utah Fund of Funds, created by the Legislature three years ago, is focused on assisting UTAH companies. Second, we must expand our GLOBAL vision. Utah's export growth is the strongest in the nation. To ensure a continued focus on international business, I challenge Lew Cramer and other international business leaders to double Utah exports in the next five years. Third, I urge the Legislature to pass Senator Ralph Okerlund's Business Expansion and Retention bill to support companies throughout rural Utah. Utah has been recognized time and again as a pro-business state, including, for the first time in our state's history, a #1 ranking from Forbes as the "Best State for Business and Careers" in America.

I am thrilled but not surprised – we are the best place for business because we have the best people for business. However, the competition is getting tougher. My fellow governors across the country have all promised to improve their state economies. They are gunning for Utah's top spot for job growth. To stay ahead of the competition we must refine, distinguish, and promote our competitive advantages.

One of those advantages is our unprecedented partnerships. I thank Senator Scott Jenkins for running legislation to create a Governor's Economic Development Coordinating Council. This council will ensure that the collective efforts of government and the business community are focused on jobs, jobs and more JOBS. This collaboration will be further enhanced by the co-location of many economic development entities into a building, that I am pleased to announce tonight will be Utah's own World Trade Center, located in downtown Salt Lake City.

Two of the most important ways government can nurture a business-friendly environment are 1) to keep taxes low and 2) make regulation fair. Many states are raising taxes. In Utah, we are in the enviable position of being able to keep taxes low and still pay for essential services – because we saved for a rainy day when times were good, knowing a storm would eventually come. Despite this ongoing economic gale, my budget maintains at least 110 million dollars in the Rainy Day Fund and reflects my commitment to keeping taxes low. Increasing taxes on our citizens and businesses will be counterproductive to economic recovery.

I understand that the purpose of government regulation is to maintain a level playing field. As a small business owner, I have also experienced the cost and frustration of over-reaching and irrational regulation. In order to separate regulations that serve an important purpose, from those regulations that serve no purpose at all, I have asked each member of my Cabinet to review existing business regulations and determine which could be kept, which should be modified, and which will be eliminated.

Last year I created the Governor's Commission to Optimize State Government, chaired by former Governor Norm Bangerter. Its mission was to conduct a performance audit of every aspect of state government. After a year long review, they said: "One thing is clear . . . Utahns can rest assured that their tax dollars are being spent efficiently and effectively."

But the best managed state can do even better. That is why we are addressing all 56 Commission recommendations to make government even more efficient. I invite all citizens to follow the progress we are making at optimize.utah.gov, because the government of Utah belongs to the people of Utah.

The final cornerstone we must secure is the SPIRIT OF SELF-DETERMINATION, the ability to address Utah problems with Utah solutions. I firmly believe – If we as a state fail to vigorously fight to protect and defend our rights under the Constitution, those rights will invariably be seized and usurped by the federal government. I remind Washington, we are a state, not a colony, and I assure you, on my watch, Utah will not stand idly by.

In fact, we and 26 other states are asserting our right and our obligation to say no to an unconstitutional federal health care program. Over the past three years we have worked closely with you in the Legislature to create solutions to reform Utah's health care system. We are also taking the lead to rein in outrageous cost increases in federally mandated entitlement programs, before those costs further impair our ability to fund education and other vital state services.

In the election last November, the people sent a message that federal domination must give way to mutual collaboration. Unfortunately, that message was promptly ignored. Two days before Christmas, while most of us were spending time with family and friends, federal officials at the US Department of Interior secretly prepared an order to announce a new wild lands designation on public lands. With NO public input, with NO state input, this pronouncement threatens years of collaboration and rural economic progress. Let me be clear –this process and the resulting policy are FLAT OUT WRONG!

I find it equally unacceptable that the federal government intrudes in Utah classrooms, while it fails to protect and secure our borders! On issues like immigration, where the federal government has abdicated its responsibility and stepped aside, we must step forward. We have been sent here by the voters to find solutions to tough issues. Immigration reform is but one example of how we must achieve a new level of collaboration, commitment, and initiative. As we undertake this work, let us never forget our obligation to respect each other – even when we disagree, to engage in civil dialogue, to temper passion with reason and let us remember our common goal to secure the best outcomes for all people of this great state.

Let me conclude by saying I get it. I am a parent. I am a grandparent. The challenges faced by every Utah family, including my own, are lively topics of discussion when our family gets together every Sunday for dinner. I know the pressures of providing for a family, and the challenges of running a small family business. I still do the grocery shopping, and, yes, I do know the cost of a gallon of milk. I know what it's like to worry for my family, and I know what it's like to worry for our state.

I get it – and I know that you get it, too. As elected officials, each of us has been given a mandate and the voice of the Utah voter rings loud and clear: STRENGTHEN UTAH'S ECONOMY! The four cornerstones I have outlined tonight are straightforward. But none are easy. All will require strength and discipline, adherence to principles of frugality and common sense, and a spirit of collaboration, partnership and leadership. We are Utahns and we are up to the challenge. My unrelenting belief in the people of Utah—in who we are, and what we stand for—is stronger than ever. Our house is well-built. The foundation is sturdy. And despite the economic storm, the roof isn't leaking and the basement isn't flooding.

My pledge to you tonight is that I will do not only the simple things; I will do the difficult things to enable growth and a return to prosperity. Education, energy development, job creation, and self-determination are at the heart of what has made America great. And they are the four cornerstones of Utah's strength.

This is the State of our State and I stand proudly for who we are and where we are going. I want to take time to thank you for your service, and dedication. May God bless you in your efforts, and may God continue to bless America and the great State of Utah.

On motion of Representative Dee, the Committee of the Whole and Joint Convention were dissolved and the Legislature adjourned until January 27, 2011.

30 This bill takes effect on July 1, 2011.

INTENT LANGUAGE TO H.B. 1001

On motion of Representative Christensen, the House voted to print the following intent language in the House Journal.

“The intent of the Utah House of Representatives in voting to repeal former HB 477 is to allow a working group that has been formed to meet and study and hold public hearings over a fixed time period and then recommend to the Utah Legislature those changes in current statute that will result in the best public policy for our state. Those committee members consist of assigned Legislators, business, media and community leaders and other respected professionals and members of the public all of whom have significant backgrounds and experience in the matters encompassed within the current code known as “GRAMA”. (63G-2-101 et. sec.)

Of great concern to the House is the current lack of sufficient express recognition and protection in statute for the reasonable privacy and confidentiality interests of individual citizens and constituents who communicate with and share their personal concerns and circumstances with their elected representatives.

The vote to repeal former HB 477 and the formation of the working group and the further dialogue and the ability to reconvene if needed in a later special session as may be called by the Governor with the benefit of such added deliberations are desired by the House to ensure that the interests of all citizens are fully considered and protected through the legislative process.”

VETO LETTERS

Dear President Waddoups and Speaker Lockhart: March 30, 2011

The Utah House of Representatives has presented me with H.B. 328, STATE GOVERNMENT WORK WEEK. I have decided to veto this bill for a number of reasons.

First, there would be costs involved with moving the state back to a five day work week. My office, as well as the Department of Human Resource Management, alerted the Legislature that any bill proposing changes to the state work week would have to come with the monies attached to facilitate the change. Despite this, the bill passed without funding.

Second, the bill constitutes an unwarranted intrusion on the power granted to the Governor in Article VII, Section 5 of the Utah Constitution to faithfully execute the law. As such H.B. 328 violates Article V, Section of the Utah Constitution.

Third, the people of Utah have grown accustomed to extended Monday through Thursday hours. Although H.B. 328 purports to permit those hours to continue, as a practical matter, the aforementioned lack of funding would require the State to abandon those extended hours. Surveys have shown that the public, as well as state employees, overwhelmingly support extended hours. It would be too disruptive, and simply bad policy, to change them now.

We have been searching for ways to keep extended hours on Monday through Thursday while making critical services available on Fridays. The State has made great strides providing services on-line and has opened physical offices on Fridays where we have seen a need. To better ensure that the people of Utah can obtain such critical services on Fridays, I am today issuing an Executive Order mandating that by October 1, 2011, all state agencies will ensure that critical, public-facing services will be available on Fridays in one of three manners: (1) in-person; (2) on-line; or (3) with telephone support.

For these reasons, I have vetoed H.B. 328.

Dear President Waddoups and Speaker Lockhart: March 30, 2011

The Utah Senate has presented me with S.B. 229, TRANSPORTATION FUNDING REVISIONS. I have vetoed this bill because it would unduly restrict the State's budget flexibility in future years.

S.B. 229 would earmark a growing percentage of certain sales tax proceeds for transportation projects. Although I agree that a modern and effective transportation system is vital to Utah's economic success, I am concerned that S.B. 229's automatic earmark will translate into decreased ability to fund other budget priorities, such as higher education, human services and economic development, in future years. The recent past has taught us that economic tides can turn quickly. To maintain our position as the best managed state in the nation, Utah must be able to react quickly to changed financial circumstances.

For these reasons, I have vetoed S.B. 229

Dear President Waddoups and Speaker Lockhart: March 30, 2011

The Utah Senate has presented me with S.B. 294, Second Substitute, PATIENT ACCESS REFORM. I have vetoed this bill because its provisions would negatively impact the State’s health reform efforts.

As you know, the Utah Health Exchange is a nationally recognized effort to expand access to, and reduce the cost of, health care. S.B. 294, which was publicly released in the waning hours of the 44th day of the session, would hurt the Exchange’s ability to operate effectively. It would likely lead to a redistribution of premiums in a fashion that would negatively impact older Utahns. S.B. 294 also carried a fiscal note that the Utah Legislature did not fund. At a time when we are challenging the federal government’s unconstitutional attempt to regulate health care and asking that this be lift to the states, it is imperative that Utah have the tools it needs to provide an example to the nation of how reform should occur.

For these reasons, I have vetoed S.B. 294.

Dear President Waddoups and Speaker Lockhart: March 30, 2011

The Utah Senate has presented me with S.B. 305, Second Substitute, ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT THROUGH EDUCATION/CAREER ALIGNMENT. I have vetoed this bill.

UtahFutures.org is a web-based advisement tool that has been launched by a number of State agencies, including the State Office of Education, the State Board of Regents, the Utah State Library and the Division of Workforce Services. I applaud the efforts of S.B. 305 to better align education with the business community. Indeed, my Education Excellence Commission has recommended that we align education with economic development and workforce needs.

S.B. 305, however, raises the possibility of legislators performing executive branch functions in violation of Article V, Section 1 of the Utah Constitution.

While this prevents me from signing S.B. 305, I will work with our state agencies to implement the intent of the bill by strengthening the education/career alignment in UtahFutures.org.

For this reason, I have vetoed S.B. 305.
