

CENTRAL WASATCH COMMISSION

Since June

Since June, staff have been busy building a governmental entity from the ground up. Here's what that entails:

- The CWC website and social media platforms launched, we designed the new CWC brand, created official CWC email addresses, and printed business cards for staff (ask for one!).
- Plans for a new office space at The Gateway in Salt Lake City were drafted and construction began.
- The CWC hosted a Board Retreat in October. There, the overall direction and input for a strategic vision for the CWC was determined.
- A 35-member Stakeholder Council was created after over 100 people applied.
- The Environmental Dashboard project was transferred from Salt Lake County to the CWC in 2018. Work on the Dashboard will resume in 2019.
- The CWNCRA went through three new drafts of proposed Congressional legislation, and a proposed Bill was approved by the CWC Board in November.

Here are some numbers

- 2 trail-maintenance work days
- 3 drafts of the CWNCRA, with 8 technical amendments that will be implemented into subsequent drafts
- 3 Project Area tours with the Utah Congressional Delegation staff, and other Utah public officials
- 5 press releases
- 7 newsletters
- 9 public meetings
- 45 meetings and conference calls with community councils, city and county councils, business owners, State legislators, and private citizens
- More than 50 meetings, correspondences, and proposals among the members of a Alta Ski Lifts/Grizzly Gulch working group members to reach a solution tenable for all stakeholders
- 482 social media followers on Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter (are you following us?)
- Over 400 public comments and responses

Looking to 2019

- The CWC staff will move into the new office space at The Gateway in Salt Lake City adjacent to the Wasatch Front Regional Council.

- Work will continue with the Little Cottonwood Canyon Environmental Impact Statement, and the CWC will co-lead the Transportation Corridor Study with UDOT. The projected completion of these studies is late 2020.
- Work will resume with the Environmental Dashboard, which is projected to reach completion late 2019.
- The Stakeholder Council will begin regularly meeting.
- The CWC Board will meet on a regular, monthly basis on the first Monday of every month, unless otherwise noted. .
- We will continue to refine the CWNCRA, and work towards consensus among all stakeholders involved. A new draft of the CWNCRA will be ready for release in January and the CWC will work with the Utah Congressional Delegation to seek introduction and passage.
- As an outcome of the Board Retreat, a strategic plan will be developed and published on the website.
- Regular communication with you will continue through newsletters, social media blasts, blog posts, press releases, website content, meetings and direct communications.
