However, the related Utah Energy Infrastructure Authority Board is active (Utah Code §63H-2-202) and plays a role in approving High Cost Infrastructure Tax Credits described in Title 63M, Chapter 4, Part 6, High Cost Infrastructure Development Tax Credit Act. Nine years after the pioneers arrived in the Salt Lake Valley, they held a fair in October of 1856, then called the "Deseret Fair." In 1902, the Legislature purchased the 65 acres of the current Fairpark, originally called "Agriculture Park." The Legislature privatized the Utah State Fair Organization in 1995, giving the gubernatorial-appointed board of directors a mandate to make the fair profitable. The desire was to allow the fair to no longer be subsidized by taxpayers.

It was initially created as an independent public corporation by statute in 1995 (Utah Code Annotated §63H-6-103).
