Steve, will get to this when I get back next week. I think that both a personal and an office computer were impacted. I do not know how significant it was—at the moment. It has been several months since I dealt with this issue. My understanding is that it happened as a routine practice and long before anyone had thought about the DOJ or other investigations. Recovery from one of the computers was significant, as I recall. The other computer had crashed and recovery from that computer was unsuccessful. This may need to wait for John to get back and I need to get that date but I think he is gone all next week and maybe part of the following. We will work with you on this matter, as should have been obvious to you. Thank you.

Rod:

When we met recently in your office I believe you indicated that there was a significant loss of data from the Attorney General's personal computer(s) that might impact a production of documents by him and that you previously had made unsuccessful efforts to recover data from the affected computer(s). Could you please provide the following information as promptly as possible:

1. Which computer(s) are affected by the data loss?
2. What is the scope of the data loss?
3. When did your client first become aware of the data loss and under what circumstances?
4. What efforts have been made to recover missing data, by whom and when?
5. What is your best understanding of the circumstances, timing and cause of the data loss?
6. Are you or your client still in possession of the affected computer(s)?

In addition, we would appreciate it if you or your client refrained from making additional efforts to recover the data without first consulting with us. And, of course, we expect that all computers, PDAs, Tablets and other communications devices will be preserved.

Many thanks, Steve.

Steven, I am now back and juggling too many balls. I have no doubt you would like this to be a serious issue. My judgment when I reviewed this matter many months ago was that it was not a serious matter. Are you suggesting that you never delete e-mails—that your firm preserves all e-mails and does not have a policy of regularly deleting many e-mails? I see what John was doing as being consistent with that type of policy. John is still out of the City. We need to talk about a production time line, as you suggested. Thank you.

Re: Special Investigative Committee

Dear Mr. Snow:

This letter follows up on our recent meeting and email communications regarding certain data that you indicated is unavailable from what we understand to be Mr. Swallow's personal computer(s). When we met, you told us that the hard drive associated with Mr. Swallow's personal computer(s) had crashed and that unsuccessful efforts had been made to restore email and data from the computer(s). Accordingly, you indicated that certain email and data might be unavailable to the Special Investigative Committee.

On Sunday, September 29, 2013, I emailed you and asked a series of follow up questions regarding the loss of email and data that you had identified. Our goal in asking these questions was to understand whether the issue you identified merited further inquiry by the Special Committee. More specifically, I asked that you:

provide the following information as promptly as possible:

1. Which computer(s) are affected by the data loss?
2. What is the scope of the data loss?
3. When did your client first become aware of the data loss and under what circumstances?
4. What efforts have been made to recover missing data, by whom and when?
5. What is your best understanding of the circumstances, timing and cause of the data loss?
6. Are you or your client still in possession of the affected computer(s)?

Rodney G. Snow, Esq.
October 4, 2013

To date, we have received no response to these questions. We would appreciate a prompt reply. If you decline to respond, I would appreciate knowing that fact, as well, at your earliest convenience.

Finally, earlier today you emailed me and asked, in part, about a timeline for production under the existing subpoena. In appropriate cases, the Special Investigative Committee will consider brief extensions of its subpoena response deadline where a subpoena recipient has demonstrated meaningful efforts to meet the existing subpoena deadline and produces documents on a rolling basis within that existing deadline. Given that, the response date of Friday, October 11, 2013 originally set forth in the subpoena to your client remains applicable here.

Sincerely,

Committee

Dear Mr. Reich:

This is to confirm my understanding of your October 15th letter regarding Attorney General Swallow's hard drive from his personal computer. As you know, this hard drive crashed, we believe, in January of this year. We had understood you to suggest earlier a third party that both of us would approve would re-examine the hard drive to determine if there is any data that can be recovered. However, we are willing to surrender the hard drive voluntarily to Curtis Rose of Mintz Digital Forensics Group, pursuant to your letter, with the following understanding of the terms you have proposed. We are also proposing some additional terms.

1. Methodology used to recover data shall be provided to us in writing after the work of the Mintz Group is complete.
2. After examination of the hard drive, it will be returned to us in its current state.
3. As we have indicated, there were emails on this hard drive subject to the attorney/client privilege and the privilege protecting ecclesiastical communications. We understand that any review of recovered documents means you may determine what files are available/recovered, but neither you nor Mintz will review any documents, emails or data that have been recovered.
4. Any files, documents, emails, etc. that are recovered shall be turned over to Clyde Snow for review. Clyde Snow shall be given a reasonable time within which to review any data that is recovered.

5. With regard to the hard drive, recovered documents shall be produced to counsel for the Special Investigative Committee, with the exception of privileged materials. As we have discussed, there may be some materials the Attorney General considers confidential and/or proprietary. They will be withheld, subject to receiving a written agreement as to how those materials will be handled between the Special Investigative Committee and the Attorney General. Once such written agreement is reached, the materials will be produced. If we cannot reach an agreement, then either party may request assistance from the Court in resolving these issues.

Mr. Rose did appear in our office about 30 minutes ago, along with Tom O'Rourke, to collect the hard drive. We had anticipated a call back from your associate, Chris Egleson, before anyone came to retrieve the hard drive. We were not prepared at the moment to turn over the hard drive, absent agreement to the above clarifications.

Please let us know if our clarifications and additions to your letter are acceptable. If not, then perhaps we should look for a third party to attempt to retrieve data from the hard drive while we work out an agreement.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Very truly yours,

CLYDE SNOW & SESSIONS

Rodney G. Snow

Re: Production of Subpoenaed Documents from Recovered
John Swallow Hard Drive

Dear Mr. Reich, Mr. Egleson and Mr. Fellows:

We are producing additional documents responsive to the House Special Investigative Committee subpoena issued on September 25, 2013, which were located on Mr. Swallow's recovered hard drive. We are still in the process of updating the privilege log. The documents are contained on the enclosed CD. In accordance with the terms of the subpoena, the documents are produced in searchable PDF format. All materials have a unique identifying number. We have redacted personal and private information as well as phone numbers on a few documents. Although the disc indicates documents are numbered JS015737-JS016468, certain document numbers in that range are not found on this disc and will be added to the privilege log.

We also enclose two invoices from Orange Legal showing charges related to making the documents on the hard drive readable and producible. We have redacted charges unrelated to production from the hard drive so that the total owed by you from the two invoices is $22,980.53.

Dear Steve, Chris and Megan:

Megan called me to inquire if Attorney General Swallow obtained a new personal cell phone in the latter part of 2012. I confirmed with the Attorney General that he has used his current personal cell phone since approximately November 2011, and has not obtained a new personal cell phone since that time. He did receive a new state i Phone in approximately November 2012. The screen on that I Phone broke when it was dropped a few weeks ago, and the Attorney General was given a new state i Phone. He understands that the state has possession of both the i Phone replaced in November 2012 and the i Phone recently dropped.

Steve emailed me last Saturday with a question about the circled numbers on the Attorney General's Franklin Covey planner. The circled numbers are the Attorney General's summary of estimated time spent on the Chaparral project during certain time periods.

Regards,

Jennifer

Shurtleff, Swallow lived it up on my dime, says convicted fraudster

Entrepreneur, accused of swindling millions from investors, has receipts for meals and massages Shurtleff and Swallow charged to him.

BY ROBERT GEHRKE

THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

UPDATED: DECEMBER 7, 2013 11:31PM

Draper • Receipts show then-Utah Attorney General Mark Shurtleff and his successor, John Swallow, got free meals, massages, golf outings and supplies at a gated Newport Beach villa, charging thousands of dollars of expenses to a man the Attorney General's Office had months earlier charged with six felonies and has put behind bars.

Shurtleff's and Swallow's curious and complicated relationship with businessman Marc Sessions Jenson, accused of swindling millions from investors, is part of an ongoing federal probe into Swallow's conduct that appears to now include Shurtleff as well.

"I'm telling you right now: They were extorting me, and they were from the very beginning," Jenson said in an interview Wednesday at the Utah State Prison in Draper.

Jenson, locked up after failing to pay $4 million in restitution and facing a new set of fraud charges, has met twice with the FBI and provided them with the same receipts and documents his attorneys gave to The Salt Lake Tribune.

The Southern California vacations were just part of what Jenson says Shurtleff and Swallow pressed him to provide. In addition, Jenson says, Shurtleff directed him to make consulting payments to a close friend of the attorney general and asked him to spend $250,000 on a phantom book deal.

Jenson says that Swallow, who boasted in 2009 that he would be joining the Attorney General's Office as Shurtleff's handpicked successor, suggested he could help the businessman navigate his legal troubles from inside the office and ensure that Jenson's plans for a luxurious $3.5 billion Mount Holly resort, with private ski slopes and a Jack Nicklaus-designed golf course, became a reality.

In exchange, Jenson alleges, Swallow wanted a share in the posh Beaver County resort. The shares started at $1.5 million.

"I was stunned. I was shocked. I was also scared to death," Jenson said. "I had no idea what they would do next."

Swallow's spokesman, Paul Murphy, issued a statement late Wednesday. Murphy says Swallow met Jenson when coaching Jenson's nephew in little league baseball, and all of Swallow's interaction with Jenson occurred when he was an attorney in private practice, before joining the Attorney General's Office.

"He never promised to help Mr. Jenson if he breached his plea arrangement," the statement said.

Swallow has walled himself off from any involvement in Jenson's case since June 2011 and the office has aggressively prosecuted Jenson, the statement said.

Shurtleff flatly denies Jenson's allegations, alleging the convict is retaliating against the man who put him in prison.

"I was responsible for the investigation, conviction and sentencing of Jenson," Shurtleff said. "... He has sworn revenge. I suggest you consider carefully whether to believe a desperate, convicted fraudster."

Jenson's story goes back more than a decade and is marked by several multimillion-dollar ventures that fizzled.

A California native who grew up in Holladay, Jenson amassed considerable wealth making short-term, high-interest "bridge loans" to business ventures while they were trying to get long-term financing.

He had experienced legal tussles before, including two bankruptcies and a previous prison stint on a tax conviction.

In 2005, the risky business deals caught up with him. A bid to buy the Mongoose bike company fell through and angry investors — whom Jenson insists he repaid in full — accused Jenson of deceiving them about the deal and his past, prompting the Utah Attorney General's Office to charge Jenson with five counts of securities fraud and a count of racketeering.

Jenson says he was at a Jazz game in 2008, when he was approached by Rob Stahura, a longtime friend. Stahura ran Mentoring of America, which itself came into the cross hairs of state regulators and ultimately was sued by the Federal Trade Commission.

Stahura had raised tens of thousands of dollars for Shurtleff and, Jenson says, offered to contact the attorney general on Jenson's behalf. Stahura arranged a meeting with Shurtleff and also introduced Jenson to Tim Lawson, a Shurtleff friend and a self-described "fixer."

Jenson says Lawson became his conduit to Shurtleff and that he paid Lawson significant sums, starting with a down payment on a piano, then $10,000 in cash followed by periodic payments during the next 18 months.

Jenson says Shurtleff told him to make the payments and "personally told me, 'Tim's my guy.'" Jenson believes some of the money went to Shurtleff.

Lawson says Jenson's claims are absurd. He says Jenson hired him to keep investors at bay while he scraped together money to repay them, but maintains Lawson never provided Jenson access to Shurtleff.

"Jenson is in prison because he is a pathological liar," Lawson said, "because he lied to the people he stole money from."

Later, Jenson says, Stahura also brought in Swallow — then Shurtleff's lead fundraiser and still more than a year from becoming No. 2 at the Attorney General's Office — to be another line to Shurtleff.

In May 2008, Jenson's attorneys hammered out a plea in abeyance with prosecutors from the Attorney General's Office in which Jenson would pay no restitution and serve no time — as long as he stayed out of trouble. But 3rd District Judge Robin Reese rejected the deal as too lenient.

Later that month, the parties were back in front of Reese, who approved a plea in abeyance that would lead to Jenson's release, but require him to pay $4.1 million in restitution over three years.

Soon after the plea, Jenson says, Lawson and Shurtleff began pressing him to help Shurtleff make campaign-fundraising connections.

In 2009, Shurtleff and Swallow made their first trips to the tony Newport Beach community of Pelican Hill.

Jenson says Shurtleff went twice in 2009, once for a weekend, the next time for several days longer. Swallow made three visits.

Receipts show they played rounds of golf.

Swallow and his wife received $228 stone massages. Swallow picked up golf balls, gloves, a golf hat and an argyle sweater totaling more than $400. And the guests ordered meals worth hundreds of dollars — all of it on Jenson's dime.

Jenson says he had little choice.

"Can you imagine how I actually felt about these people after all I'd been through?" Jenson asked. "Yes, I was cordial, but I thought this was just crazy."

Lawson and his family were also frequent guests. Lawson says he visited Pelican Hill twice a month over several months. He says Shurtleff and Swallow were his guests at the resort and that their expenses were part of his compensation.

"Part of the perks of me working for Jenson meant I got access to the facilities and meals and that stuff paid for," Lawson said. "That had nothing to do with Shurtleff. That just happened to be one of my perks."

Jenson says Shurtleff told him repeatedly that if the businessman had given to his campaign, he could have avoided all of his troubles.

"Mark Shurtleff told me at least 50 times, 'If you'd just donated to my campaign, if I'd known who you were, this never would have happened,'" Jenson said.

Shurtleff says no such conversations happened.

"That's laughable. Categorically false," he said. "Not even a hint or a suggestion. There are scores of people who will tell you Marc Jenson is a pathological liar."

Jenson also claims that Shurtleff approached him with another deal he rejected.

He says after Shurtleff's book, Am I Not A Man?, a historical narrative of the 19th-century slave Dred Scott — which Shurtleff wrote chunks of during his time at Pelican Hill — was published, Shurtleff suggested that Jenson buy $250,000 worth of books.

Jenson says Shurtleff would get $50,000 to $60,000 of that money and that Jenson would never have to actually receive the books.

Again, Shurtleff denies it happened.

"Everything he told you are lies," Shurtleff said in an email.

Jenson made his allegations wearing a white prison jumpsuit, sopping up a lunch of sloppy Joe-like stew with white bread. He said he could trade his cookies for a stamped envelope to send a letter home.

After Jenson failed to pay any of his restitution — despite, prosecutors say, burning through more than $9 million while living his lavish lifestyle — Reese sent him back to prison in 2011 for up to 10 years.

The Attorney General's Office also hit Jenson and his brother, Stephen Jenson, in August 2011 with another set of eight second-degree felony charges for allegedly defrauding investors out of millions in the Mount Holly project. That case is still pending.

Jenson says he has met twice with FBI agents for about seven hours and believes the investigation is broader than people realize.

“It is my firm knowledge,” he said, “that these two [Shurtleff and Swallow] are the tip of the iceberg that [the feds] are interested in.”

Who else are they after? He wouldn't say.

The Swallow probe

Indicted St. George businessman Jeremy Johnson, who faces 86 criminal counts, has alleged that Utah Attorney General John Swallow helped broker payoffs to enlist the aid of Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid in derailing a Federal Trade Commission investigation of Johnson's I Works business.

Swallow and Reid have denied the allegations. The Justice Department is investigating.

DECLARATION OF PROBABLE CAUSE:

Your affiants base probable cause upon the following:

1. From at least 2008 through 2013, Defendant TIMOTHY WILLIAM LAWSON has been employed by or associated with a group of individuals to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in a pattern of unlawful activity. The individuals, entities, acts, underlying cases, or proceeds have jurisdictional ties to Salt Lake County, Utah. The activities include allegations of multiple instances of retaliating against witnesses, witness tampering, obstructing justice, bribery, falsifying tax information to conceal income, and failing to pay taxes.
2. On August 10, 2005, the Utah Attorney General's Office in Salt Lake County filed an Information against Marc Sessions Jenson, charging him with, among other things, Securities Fraud and Pattern of Unlawful Activity (Third District Court Case Number 051905391).
3. Defendant LAWSON thereafter represented himself to Marc Jenson as a close friend of then Utah Attorney General, Mark Shurtleff.

4. In February 2008, Defendant LAWSON sent an email to the Utah Attorney General, Mark Shurtleff, outlining the terms of a proposed plea agreement in the Marc Jenson case, without the assigned prosecutor's knowledge.

5. During 2008, then Utah Attorney General Mark Shurtleff himself arranged a plea-in-abeyance agreement in the Marc Jenson case. The terms of the Shurtleff-arranged plea agreement were so lenient that the assigned attorney communicated her concerns to her superiors and was relieved of the case. The plea offer was presented to the Court by another prosecutor and Judge Reese rejected the no contest plea-in-abeyance because it made no provisions for restitution.

6. Jenson's plea-in-abeyance agreement was subsequently amended to include restitution to the victims (Third District Court Case Number 051905391).

7. On May 29, 2008, Marc Jenson entered no contest, plea-in-abeyance pleas to 3 counts of Sale of Unregistered Security, Third Degree Felonies. Jenson was to pay restitution in the amount of $4.1 million in total amount as one of the conditions of the plea-in-abeyance agreement. The probation period was for 3 years.

8. From January 30, 2009, to November 20, 2009, while under probation on the above-mentioned criminal case with the Utah Attorney General's Office, Marc Jenson continued to pay LAWSON approximately $120,000.00 to gain access to then Utah Attorney General Mark Shurtleff and to influence, on Jenson's behalf, potential witnesses and/or victims in Jenson's criminal cases and/or anticipated civil litigation.

9. Marc Jenson paid Defendant LAWSON the $120,000.00 in at least 18 separate payments, which were deposited into the bank accounts of Apple Dumpling Gang, LLC, and Slipstream, LLC, companies owned by LAWSON. Defendant LAWSON neither (a) disclosed these payments as income for 2009 and/or 2010 tax years on his business or individual returns filed in Salt Lake County with the Utah State Tax Commission; nor (b) paid any taxes on that money as required by Utah law.

10. Marc Jenson failed to pay restitution requested by his May 29, 2008, plea-in-abeyance agreement in his criminal case (Third District Court Case Number 051905391). As a result, on November 3, 2011, Third District Court Judge Reese revoked Jenson's probation and sent him to Prison.

11. In or about October 2007, Dr. Edward Jeffrey Donner of Fort Collins, Colorado, learned – through a business acquaintance, Timothy Bell – that Marc Jenson and his brother, Stephen Jenson, were developing a private ski and golf resort, known as the Mount Holly project, in Beaver County, Utah, and were looking for interested investors. In response to an invitation from the Jenson brothers, Edward and his wife, Judee Donner, flew to Las Vegas to meet with the Jensons regarding the potential Mount Holly investment.

12. On December 21, 2007, the Donners decided to purchase a Mount Holly membership and wired $400,000.00 to the Mount Holly MMA account number 70650749 at American National Bank, in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Subsequently, on December 28, 2007, the Donners wired an additional $1,100,000.00 to the same account at American National Bank and then, on December 31, 2007, they signed the Mount Holly Club membership agreement.

13. In or about June 2008, Edward Donner did some checking on Marc Jenson and became suspicious about the $1.5 million investment he and his wife had made. Edward Donner informed the Jensons that he wanted out of the Mount Holly project and demanded that his money be returned.

14. In or about January 2009, the Donners retained the law firm Holland & Hart, LLP, in an attempt to recoup from Marc and Stephen Jenson, through civil action, their $1.5 million investment in the Mount Holly project. Shortly thereafter, in or about February or March 2009, Defendant LAWSON, with the intent to induce or otherwise cause Edward Donner to withhold testimony, information, document(s), or item(s) and believing that an official proceeding or investigation was pending or about to be instituted, and/or to prevent an official proceeding or investigation, began contacting Edward Donner via emails, text messages, and phone calls.

15. In May 2009, the Mount Holly property was foreclosed on and sold at auction, leaving the Donners without any of the $1.5 million they had invested in the Mount Holly project.

16. Defendant LAWSON sent several aggressive text messages and emails to Edward Donner and tried to deter him from pursuing the recovery of his investment. On or about December 16, 2009, Defendant LAWSON left Edward Donner a voice message, accusing Donner of causing problems and threatening Donner with revealing supposedly illegal activities in Donner's medical practice in Colorado.

17. On or about April 30, 2009, Marc Jenson paid Defendant LAWSON one of the 18 payments, approximately $6,190.00, to arrange trips for Mark Shurtleff and John Swallow to Pelican Hill, a high-end resort in California. Defendant LAWSON arranged at least one of the Pelican Hill trips for Mark Shurtleff, using Defendant LAWSON's own name and paying for the airplane tickets with money provided by Marc Jenson and/or his staff.

18. According to receipts provided and paid by Marc Jenson, at various times, between May 2009 and July 2009, Mark Shurtleff, John Swallow, Suzanne Swallow, Nicole Lawson, Chelsea Lawson, Defendant LAWSON, and others all stayed at the Pelican Hill resort in California where Marc Jenson was staying at the time. Based on the receipts and witness statements, Marc Jenson paid for lodging and expenses such as massages, golf, food, and clothing items at the luxury resort for all of the above-mentioned individuals while he was on probation for his criminal case with the Utah Attorney General's Office (Third District Court Case Number 051905391).

19. Mark Robbins, an individual who was trying to put together "deals," as well as allegedly including a multi-million dollar development known as Whitewater VII (a development including UTA and FrontRunner Stations in Draper), was also present on at least one of the occasions and had meetings with Mark Shurtleff, John Swallow, and Marc Jenson at Pelican Hill Resort.

20. Darl McBride made two loans of $100,000.00 each to Mark Robbins, who promised to repay them. Alison Robbins, Mark Robbins' wife, issued a check in the amount of $105,000.00 to Darl McBride. The check was returned for insufficient funds. In March 2009, Darl McBride filed a civil lawsuit against Alison Robbins regarding the $105,000.00 bad check. Mark and Alison Robbins had allegedly fled to California and their exact location was unknown at that time to Darl McBride.

21. Feeling defrauded by the Robbinses, McBride created a website at the domain name skylinecowboy.com, for the purpose of offering a reward for information about the Robbinses' whereabouts so he could have his Complaint served. McBride then provided information to KSL News regarding Mark Robbins's involvement in the Whitewater VII development related to UTA. As a result of the information provided by McBride, KSL did a story regarding this incident.

22. Before skylinecowboy.com was published and immediately after the KSL News story broke, Defendant LAWSON called McBride. Defendant LAWSON stated he was speaking on behalf of then Attorney General Mark Shurtleff and that Shurtleff wanted McBride to back off of Robbins. McBride told Defendant LAWSON that he was not going to back off, and McBride published skylinecowboy.com with a link to the KSL News story in connection with Whitewater VII.

23. Defendant LAWSON then called McBride again and told him to take skylinecowboy.com down. Defendant LAWSON stated that, if McBride would not back off Robbins and take the website down, McBride would be sitting in jail for a long time because Shurtleff had “things” on McBride. Defendant LAWSON further told McBride that Defendant LAWSON was like “Porter Rockwell” and that he took care of things for then Attorney General Mark Shurtleff. Defendant LAWSON also stated that he had guns and “Polynesian friends” who liked to “bust people up.” McBride received those telephone calls from Defendant LAWSON in 2009, in Salt Lake County.

24. After receiving the above threats in 2009, Darl McBride contacted the Utah Attorney General’s Office and complained that he had received threats from Defendant LAWSON, who was using the name of the Attorney General Mark Shurtleff.

25. Shortly thereafter, McBride received a call from Attorney General Mark Shurtleff. Shurtleff requested a meeting with McBride. They met at Mimi’s Café on May 8, 2009, within days of Attorney General Shurtleff’s returning from Pelican Hill. Shurtleff acknowledged that he knew that Defendant LAWSON used his name and told people he represented Shurtleff. Shurtleff explained that Defendant LAWSON had introduced him to people who became contributors to his campaign and opined to McBride that skylinecowboy.com was “pretty harsh”. During their conversation, Shurtleff acknowledged that what Robbins was doing was a “Ponzi” scheme, but he wanted McBride to back off anyway.

26. During the May 8, 2009, meeting at Mimi’s Café, Shurtleff asked McBride “What can I do?” McBride responded that he needed $2 million. Shurtleff replied that he was going to meet with Marc Jenson and Shurtleff would ask Jenson if he would pay $2 million on behalf of Robbins.

27. Approximately a month after the Mimi’s Café meeting, Mark Shurtleff and John Swallow together met with Marc Jenson in California at the Pelican Hill Resort. According to Marc Jenson, Shurtleff told Marc Jenson to give $2 million to Defendant LAWSON so he could pay McBride to back off of Robbins. At the time Shurtleff asked Marc Jenson to pay $2 million to McBride, Jenson still owed over $4 million in restitution to victims as part of the Shurtleff-brokered plea-in-abeyance. Jenson eventually went to Prison for not paying his restitution in that case. In 2009, while Marc Jenson was paying Defendant LAWSON, Jenson also sent approximately $170,000 in multiple payments to Mark Robbins and Alison Robbins.

28. In 2009, Mark Shurtleff was running for U.S. Senate. John Swallow was a primary fundraiser for Mark Shurtleff. Later Shurtleff withdrew from the U.S. Senate race and hired Swallow as the Chief Deputy over the Civil Division of the Utah Attorney General's Office.

29. On March 2, 2010, Kirk Torgenson, Chief Deputy of the Criminal Division of the Utah Attorney General's Office, sent an email to John Swallow, then Chief Civil Deputy, communicating his concerns about Defendant LAWSON, who was a longtime associate of both Attorney General Mark Shurtleff and John Swallow. Torgensen wrote: "Lawson is the guy that is going to bring the house of cards down."

30. Defendant LAWSON has maintained his relationship with Swallow since they both went to Pelican Hill in 2009. From April 2009 to March 2013, there were approximately 680 calls or text messages between Swallow and Defendant LAWSON. In addition to the 680 calls or text messages initially discovered up to March 2013, more recent evidence shows text messages continued until at least September 2013 between LAWSON and Swallow. Those text messages discussed various matters including the holidays, the 2012 election, the FBI investigation, and possible wire-tapping of Defendant LAWSON's phone.

31. Starting in 2011, the Utah Attorney General's Office was investigating Defendant LAWSON in connection with LAWSON's dealings with Edward Donner. LAWSON initially declined the request for an interview from attorneys with the Attorney General's Office. In May 2012, the Attorney General's Office conflicted out only the LAWSON investigation to the Utah Department of Public Safety.

32. In January 2013, John Swallow was sworn in as Utah Attorney General.

33. In February 2013, Chief Deputy Attorney General Kirk Torgensen contacted the Davis County Attorney's Office expressing concerns about the involvement of Defendant LAWSON with witnesses and victims. Shortly after, Torgensen received a phone message from Defendant LAWSON.

34. On March 4, 2013, Torgensen returned Defendant LAWSON's call. The call was made from 5272 South College Drive #200 in Murray, Salt Lake County, Utah. During the call, Defendant LAWSON gave Torgensen false information concerning multiple material aspects of the investigation, including relationships, facts, witnesses, and suspect activities.

35. On August 27, 2013, Defendant LAWSON was interviewed by FBI agents at 5425 South Amelia Earhart Drive in Salt Lake County, Utah. Defendant LAWSON gave the agents false information regarding multiple material aspects of the investigation

Attorney General Mark Shurtleff,

I have attached a letter containing my formal complaint against the illegal activities of Rob O'Neel and Shane Gadbaw of New York. I appreciate your interest in correcting this unfortunate situation.

Thank you for your efforts in this matter.

Sincerely,

Alan Redd

6. I signed an operating agreement for Mount Holly Partners, LLC, which contained sections that provided for Ares Funding to have the benefit of up to $24 million in "Transfers in Payment" to address pre-organization investments such as mine. The operating agreement contained terms that required Ares Funding and MHU Holdings to provide funding to Mount Holly as necessary to advance the resort development project. These contractual points were important, since they provided assurances that my charter membership and estate lot would be valuable and that the rest of my loan could be repaid as the resort progressed. Based on those discussions and provisions, I approved those terms and understand that Mount Holly and Rob O'Neel closed the original investment transaction in December of 2006.

7. In 2007, Mount Holly provided me with the charter membership documentation which required Mount Holly to deliver my estate lot to me, free and clear of liens, within one year of the charter membership registration date.

8. Since I received my charter membership documentation, many unethical and illegal activities have been perpetuated by Mr. O'Neel and his colleague at XE Capital, Shane Gadbaw, which justify investigation by your office.

9. In 2007, Mount Holly defaulted on debts that it incurred in its acquisition of the resort properties. Mount Holly was unable to pay or refinance these debts because of a lack of capital. Immediately following the December 2006 closing, Rob O'Neel contacted Ares Funding and requested that Ares Funding loan to O'Neel $10 million of the $20 million that Ares Funding was allowed to retain. O'Neel stated that, by having the additional $10 million for a short time period, O'Neel would be able to repay the $10 million to Ares Funding and obtain additional financing for Mount Holly from XE Capital. On this basis, Ares Funding wired O'Neel the funds. No additional financing from O'Neel or XE resulted. Despite Ares Funding and CPB Development providing an additional $6 million to $7 million to Mount Holly, and despite O'Neel's obligation to match those contributions, O'Neel, MHU Holdings and XE provided no additional funds to Mount Holly until long after the resort had defaulted on its loan payments.

10. During this time period, Ares Funding learned that, rather than using the $10 million to obtain additional financing, O'Neel had used the money to purchase a private jet (Boeing Business Jet) for approximately $50 million. O'Neel made repeated promises during 2007 that he would repay the $10 million and rectify the Mount Holly situation.

11. In July 2007, representatives of Ares Funding flew to New York and met with O'Neel and representatives of XE Capital. Ares Funding complained to XE Capital regarding O'Neel's failure to provide required capital to Mount Holly, but, at O'Neel's request, Ares Funding did not make XE Capital aware at that time of O'Neel's deception regarding the $10 million. O'Neel and XE Capital both committed to provide Mount Holly with the necessary funding.

12. In September 2007, with the support of O'Neel, representatives of Mount Holly and Ares Funding met with the lenders under the resort's three main loans – the Wes Adams loan, the Puffer Lake loan and the Holladay Bank loan. Mount Holly was successful in negotiating extensions of all three loans, contingent on partial paydowns of the loan balances, which O'Neel promised that he and XE Capital would fund. In the case of the Wes Adams loan, provided for in the operating agreement, but XE Capital (through MHU) filed a complaint in New York federal court and requested a TRO to remove Ares. The court in New York ruled against XE and dismissed the case.

19. During the summer and early fall of 2008, representatives of Ares Funding negotiated with Wes Adams to purchase the portion of the Wes Adams loan not purchased by Bridlepath, for an amount in the $7 million range (for obligations having a face value of approximately $23 million). In October 2008, XE Capital, through another affiliate called "AMDS Holdings, LLC", went behind Mount Holly's back again and convinced Wes Adams to sell the remaining portion of his loan to AMDS for $8.3 million. Shane Gadbaw signed the documentation on behalf of AMDS.

20. In December 2008, AMDS commenced foreclosure against the resort under the Wes Adams trust deeds.

21. In early 2009, Holladay Bank completed its foreclosure on approximately 8 acres of land in the resort. Mount Holly was unable to stop the foreclosure due to lack of financing.

22. Should AMDS continue with the foreclosure, XE Capital will effectively and illegally steal the resort from its rightful owners and I will be deprived illegally of the charter membership and the estate lot I was granted, as well as the ability to obtain repayment of my other investments through the "Transfers in Payment" from the resort.

23. Shane Gadbaw was made aware in early 2008 of Rob O'Neel's fraud and theft and the illegal conversion by XE Capital (through an affiliate Bridlepath) of rights belonging to Mount Holly and Ares Funding. Not only did he fail to correct or otherwise address those wrongs, he became knowingly complicit in them and has continued since that time to direct and personally benefit from the continued fraud, theft and illegal conversion of the rights of Mount Holly and Ares Funding.

Thank you for your help in addressing these grievances perpetuated on citizens of your state.

Sincerely,

Alan Redd

Dear Attorney General,

Please see the following messages from my attorneys regarding the decision today in the Federal court. I am very disappointed that no one will look at this case on the facts. While the arbitration panel has no time and the federal court apparently has no jurisdiction the Mt. Holly property is being stolen from me, our investors, the vendors, the members and Beaver County. Not only has XE Capital, Shane Gadbaw, MHU, AMDS and Rob O'Neel stolen $10.5 million from us they have now stolen the property for the Mt Holly Club. They have done these things illegally and they are getting away with it.

My attorney Mark James asked the court why AMDS can do whatever they want and no one will take jurisdiction and there was no good answer. He pointed out that AMDS and Marc Jenson both parties to the case but not parties to the arbitration can be ruled on in Federal Court and there was not a good answer to that either just I have no jurisdiction. I am now appealing to your office to help stop this theft from continuing to occur. I am available to meet with you or your staff anytime to discuss this and give you additional information.

Thank you,

Steve Jenson

John:

I thought you would be interested in this as well. Candidly, I was very, very surprised by Judge Campbell's ruling that she lacked jurisdiction to hear this matter. Apparently, no one has jurisdiction over AMDS. That simply cannot be the case. It sure isn't fair by any standard. Where it appears this thing is headed is that AMDS gets (steals) the project, Mt. Holly gets nothing, and all of those who have invested in Mt. Holly, done work for Mt. Holly, and bought memberships in Mt. Holly are left holding the bag. I have no confidence that MHU (MHU and Ares Funding/CPB are the members of Mt. Holly) has anything, even if we prevail in the arbitration. This all strikes me as very unfair.

Mark,

I'll take it from here - please keep this confidential - this is not information that Mr. James is entitled to or needs to know.

Jenson has done very little to comply with the terms of his PIA agreement. He has not paid a nickel of the $4.1M in restitution, and we are about a year into the 3-year abeyance period. He has not provided us with tax records for last year, which were due on July 31, 2008, and he has not yet provided us with tax records for this year, due by July 31, 2009. I will be sending a letter to his defense counsel advising that we see this as a material breach of the PIA agreement, and he needs to comply immediately. We have received several contacts from a variety of sources of his current business activities in California and elsewhere - "ongoing investigation into his activities" amounts to follow-up on those complaints to see if (a) there is substance to them and (b) if they violate the PIA agreement. Since Jenson is not on any formal probation to court, by default this office becomes his probation officer, and we have an obligation to check out the merits of complaints when they come to us. So far, there is nothing concrete which would amount to a new crime or a prohibited business activity upon which we could file an Order to Show Cause and have the PIA entered as a judgement and proceed to sentencing. I will say that there is a lot of smoke, but so far no fire.

That is the status of our case. I'm happy to discuss further with you or talk to Mark James any time. Please let me know if there is more information I can provided. thanks. SWR

>>> Mark Shurtleff 5/29/2009 2:17 PM >>>

Okay, thanks. Please draft a response to the complainants.

Now, I need to know ASAP what specifically are "our ongoing investigation into his activities, and the likelihood of continued litigation" as well as details on how "he has not honored his agreement and the office may be constrained to take further action against him."

I have heard nothing of this and last time I inquired understood we had no evidence that he was not complying with his plea in abeyance. It is my understanding from Mark James, they were hoping to get restitution paid and some consideration for completing the plea deal at 18 months.

CONFIDENTIAL

Mark,

We had Doug Townsend invest considerable time looking at the letters asking you to take some action on the Mt. Holly matter on behalf of Redd, Jenson, and Bell. Doug then presented the matter for case review. In a nutshell, the unanimous finding is that this is a business deal gone south with the economy. Specifically, the case review committee unanimously concluded:

1. There is no basis to believe that a crime was committed, and accordingly, no basis to believe that O'Neel and Gadbaw committed a crime.
2. The case is presently the subject of litigation and binding arbitration.
3. Even if there were some tenuous probable cause, it may well be an actual conflict of interest for this office due to prior direct dealings with Marc Jenson and our ongoing investigation into his activities, and the likelihood of continued litigation. His charges were resolved with a plea in abeyance and a commitment to refrain from certain activities and pay restitution. There is cause to believe that he has not honored his agreement and the office may be constrained to take further action against him.

I think that it generally would be inappropriate to allow a criminal investigation to come at the tail of arbitration agreements to enforce a judgment or to take a second bite at a collection attempt. I think that is exactly what these folks are trying to do. They made an investment with certain individuals and the investment soured. The criminal process is not the appropriate venue for the resolution of the investment dispute.

Mr. Shurtleff,

My husband has tried to make contact with you to set up an appointment with himself and Dr. Donner for sometime to no avail. I feel it is your obligation as the attorney General of the state of Utah to give time to the citizens of this state who have been harmed by dishonest business men. You are well aware of Marc Jensen and his corrupt behavior with regard to business dealings in Utah.

He has once again hurt many people with the project Mt. Holly. It is the development in the Tushar Mts. of Southern Utah (previous Elk Meadows Ski resort). I would appreciate you taking the time to meet with some of those involved in this project that were harmed by Marc Jensen, that is your job! It is just irresponsible of you to not even respond back to us.

A man named Tim Lawson continues to call Dr. Donner. Dr. Donner has text, voice-mail, and letters from him that have come across very threatening. He uses your name quite often saying he is a good friend of yours and can have your help on matters. I don't know if you have given him permission to say these things, but it has made me feel very uncomfortable.

We are not sure where to go from here. We have retained legal council and they would like to speak to you as well. Please give us a little of your time to see if you might be able to help.

Thank you,

He uses your name quit often saying he is a good friend of yours and can have your help on matters. I don't know if you have given him permission to say these things, but it has made me feel very uncomfortable.

We are not sure where to go from here. We have retained legal council and they would like to speak to you as well. Please give us a little of your time to see if you might be able to help.

Thank you,

Dear Mr. Bell,

I forwarded your emails (and those of others) to my criminal and investigation divisions and asked them to take another look at the possibility of opening up an investigation.

Unless and until an investigation establishes sufficient evidence to support criminal charges to meet the burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt, there is nothing the State of Utah can do to delay or stop any alleged auction of properties involved. I would assume you and other alleged victims have long since retained legal counsel to protect your interests, including civil action to stop any auction and/or recoup your investment.

Sincerely,

Mark:

Attached is something you could send out. It is up to you. Please vet it through Ken before doing anything with it.

The benefit is that it is a response. It also frames things from a "personal" standpoint. BTW, I don't think I'd raise this, but as I understand it, Tim was able to pay for the trip because he had a role as I recall in the business side of your novel. Didn't he hook you up with the publisher? Wasn't he going to have some role in promoting the book. Wasn't his incentive to take you on the trip to discuss those details as well?

I have not thought through those points, but to the extent it helps, I think that those were the facts and why Tim was justified in paying for the trip from your perspective. It certainly was from mine.

Questions for Mark Shurtleff

Are you aware that Lawson allegedly hires himself out to people to help them resolve issues with state government?

No

One individual alleges Lawson told him he would need to pay a $20,000 fee to him, with at least $9,000 of that amount being directed to your campaign fund. Has Lawson ever directed campaign donations to you through third parties before, as this source alleges?

No, and to my knowledge Tim has never contributed to any of my campaigns.

Did Lawson ever speak to you about Brian Kitts?

No.

Lawson has indicated that he worked for Marc Sessions Jenson and other sources have confirmed that he was hired to lobby you on behalf of him. Did Lawson speak to you about Jenson's securities case?

I don't believe he did until after Mr. Jenson entered his plea. I told him to tell Mr. Jenson that he needed to pay his full restitution.

Were you aware that according to a letter from Kevin Reed of the Quin Emmanuel firm, that Lawson had sent threatening text messages to his client Shane Gadbaw a partner in the Mt. Holly development. Lawson was quoted as acting as a corporate facilitator for Marc Sessions Jenson. In the letter Lawson is alleged to have said that he was in the Attorney General's office when there were discussions made of bringing criminal charges against Gadbaw's company. Is that an accurate characterization? Was Lawson present for discussion about possible actions against Gadbaw's company? Or if not, in any position to have heard about such criminal complaints?

Mr. Lawson was never a part of any discussions held in my office regarding Mr. Jenson or Mr. Gadbaw.

Lawson says that in June of 2009 he took you to California to do fundraising. While there, Lawson said you happened to meet with Jenson in church. If this is accurate, what did you meet with Jenson about?

In early 2009 Mr. Lawson invited me to get away to finish my novel, and I accepted his invitation. It was on personal time and I consider it to be personal. I did meet Mr. Jenson. It was following his plea arrangement with the State and I consider that case closed.

Did Jenson pledge any kind of support to your campaign?

Mr. Jenson has never raised nor contributed any money to any of my political campaigns.

According to Lawson this trip was paid for on his expense and for the purposes of fundraising, which would make it accordingly an in-kind donation. Why was this not reported on your FEC campaign finance filings?

This was not a campaign-related trip. It was a personal business trip related to my novel.

Were you also aware that Lawson was employed by Jenson at this time?

No. I was not privy to any financial arrangement between Lawson and Jenson.

In our last records request I saw that you had written a letter of recommendation—or approved it—for Lawson’s company Slipstream International to an entity called Dominion Capital Investment Services, for some kind of project in the Marshall Islands. What can you tell me about that endeavor?

Nothing.

Did they receive the funding they were looking for?

What did Lawson tell you about Dominion Capital?

Do you still stand behind this endorsement of his business acumen even after his company sunk and damaged a hovercraft that belonged to Davis County Search and Rescue? Or after he could no longer pay his employees and later filed for bankruptcy?

Do you know what Lawson did with these letters of recommendation? It’s concerning since there seems to be no indicator that the Dominion Capital or Appleseed International are actual organizations. Were you concerned that you might be recommending Slipstream to organizations that don’t actually exist?

In your letter of recommend you also spoke highly of Ron Allen of the Tribal Associates Group. Are you aware that Allen is a current business partner with former congressman and ex-con James Trafficant in developing a casino in Ohio?

Your letter also indicates you knew that Allen was an advocate for indigenous issues. Are you also aware that Allen is not a member of any federally recognized tribe? And that the Tribal Associates Group is not recognized as a tribe?

The allegation of a quid pro quo scenario has already been raised in regards to Jenson’s 2008 securities case. Sources have indicated that when Jenson’s case was nearing trial, Jenson said he was going “to make a deal with you” and that he had planned on supporting your campaign in the future. Then, in June of 2009, you accept a fundraising trip that is hosted by Lawson, who is also employed at the time by Jenson. How would you react to the concern that this could be seen as a conflict of interest?

First, the trip was following the plea. Second, the trip was personal. Third, no fundraising was done during the trip.

Finally have you spoken, or communicated through text or email, to Tim Lawson in the past few weeks?

Having further reviewed the Memo with Mark's edits, I still believe we can not be effective in protecting the integrity of the new case and insulating the AG from personal or political attack without a full screen starting now, before jenson's OSC and sentencing hearings. No doubt Jenson will try to use Mark to influence the sentencing on the current, and exploit that to whatever benefit he can in the current investigation. He may also to use the AG to create an internal conflict of interest on the new case, requiring disqualification of the entire office. He is much less likely to be successful on that front with a full screen in place. I don't see how we can go forward and protect the AG at the same time without a full screen, effective before Jenson begins to try to manipulate his sentencing. SWR

Memo to the file

I received a phone call today from Paul who I had met last Spring (2009). He reminded me who he was & told me that he is currently in the business of selling phone cards. He then shifted to the topic of Mark Jensen & asked why subpoenas were being issued. I told him that it was not appropriate for me to be discussing the case, but that if Mr. Jensen would have one of his lawyers call, our office could speak with him or her. I also told him that I represent the civil side, not the criminal side of the office.

Memo to the File

Tim Lawson called me today. He said M. Jensen had called + complained that someone was calling his former landlord and disparaging him. Said the person identified himself as working for the AG's office in Utah.

I told ~~For~~ Tim that I would look into it to make sure nobody was doing anything inappropriate and I encouraged Tim to advise Mr. Jensen to take care of his obligations.

Memo to the File

A few days ago I recieved a phone call on my caller ID from a (949) area code. My brother lives in the Newport area so I called the number today. I asked who it was and it was Mark Jensen. I asked why he was calling and he mentioned a hearing in June and if he needed to be there. I told him I did not know but from what I had heard I did not think he needed to attend but that his attorneys could handle it. I asked him not to call me -- that he should be dealing thru counsel, now that I work for the AG's office.

Mailer alleges Utah AG candidate was investigated by feds

"This flier is so outrageous. It's an absolute lie," Utah attorney general's office says of claims.

BY ROBERT GEHRKE

THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE

PUBLISHED: JUNE 13, 2012 10:01PM

UPDATED: JUNE 14, 2012 10:40AM

A political ad that will hit Republican voters' mailboxes this week makes a dramatic allegation — that GOP attorney general candidate John Swallow was the target of a federal investigation for intervening in a Salt Lake County bid process.

But the Utah attorney general's office says that accusation is wrong, calling the flier a malicious hit piece and a potential violation of state law.

The Swallow camp also is firing back. "He [Swallow] talked to the FBI," said Jason Powers, a consultant for the candidate's campaign. "He wasn't the target of an investigation. He was supporting an investigation."

The mailer says Swallow, as chief deputy attorney general, intervened in a contract on behalf of a company in which he held a personal financial stake — a charge Powers also denies — was investigated by the feds last year and "could potentially be indicted at any time."

No source is cited for the allegation, but Dimitri Moumoulidis, a Democrat in charge of Ute PAC, which sent the mailer to 30,000 likely Republican voters Wednesday, said he has been told the information by reliable sources.

"John Swallow is a bad fit for this state," said Moumoulidis, "and I think there are things we haven't been discussing about John Swallow that probably need to be discussed before he's anointed as the Republican Party nominee."

The flier, coming two weeks before Swallow's June 26 GOP primary against attorney Sean Reyes, raises the issue of a contract dispute involving Salt Lake County and California-based Worldwide Environmental Products, which sought to provide emissions-testing equipment to garages in the county.

Awarding the three-year, $12 million contract turned into a bitter fight. Worldwide alleged the bid was rigged, and the attorney general's office and, eventually, the FBI and U.S. attorney's office became involved, according to interviews and records obtained by The Salt Lake Tribune.

A grand jury was convened to hear testimony relating to the contract. Swallow, Assistant Attorney General Alan Bachman and Bachman's paralegal were subpoenaed to testify. But the case was apparently scrapped at the last minute; the grand jury did not convene.

The target of the investigation is unclear. The FBI and U.S. attorney's office would not comment.

Paul Murphy, spokesman for the Utah attorney general's office, said the federal authorities were investigating the contracting process.

"[Swallow and Bachman] were told they were not a subject, that they were looking at [the contract dispute], and they were being asked to testify on behalf of the FBI on what their interactions were with Worldwide," Murphy said Wednesday. "Swallow did not receive a target letter. He has a peripheral role on this, so this flier is so outrageous. It's an absolute lie."

Murphy also said Swallow has no stake in Worldwide.

Nate Sechrest, an attorney who represented Worldwide in the contract dispute, said he never understood what the FBI was investigating.

"I just have no idea," said Sechrest, who was also subpoenaed to testify. " ... I don't know that we'll ever actually know what happened."

In 2010, Worldwide, based in Brea, Calif., lost a bid to provide emissions equipment to garages in Salt Lake County. The company protested, arguing it was the only bidder whose equipment met state standards and alleged that two county councilmen — Randy

Horiuchi and Joe Hatch, who was on the bid-review team — conspired to steer the contract to another company.

Horiuchi and Hatch say that allegation is absurd and that they never even discussed the contract. They never met with the FBI and were not subpoenaed.

Worldwide's protest was rejected. The company, through lobbyist Nancy Sechrest, Nate Sechrest's mother, repeatedly pushed for an inquiry, according to emails from Nancy Sechrest to Swallow.

Bachman, who specializes in contracting, contacted the county's attorneys, T.J. Tsakalos and Craig Anderson. Both said Bachman threatened the county with a criminal probe if Worldwide didn't get another hearing on its protest.

Bachman told The Tribune that there was a misunderstanding and that he made no such threat, pointing to an email after his call in which he stressed that the state may investigate, not that it would.

Salt Lake County District Attorney Sim Gill said it was "bad pool" for the attorney general's office to insert itself into a county bid. And, if there was proof of a crime, it needed to be investigated, instead of just demanding another hearing for Worldwide, said Gill, so he called the FBI.

"If there's corruption, we want to find it. We want an objective, transparent look at this," Gill said. "If you call here and make such accusations, then you know what? Be prepared. We'll pick up the phone [to the FBI] and say, 'Investigate us, investigate them, investigate everyone else, whoever is involved in this process.'"

The FBI investigated and, in April 2011, issued a series of subpoenas, ordering several individuals involved to appear before a grand jury. But the grand jury was called off for reasons that are unclear. Charlie Christensen, who was the acting U.S. attorney at the time, would not discuss the case. An FBI spokeswoman said agency policy prohibits confirming or denying the existence of any investigation.

Excerpt from the flier:

"It has come to our attention that John Swallow was the subject of an FBI and grand jury investigation recently. It involved an incident in which John Swallow was using government resources to try and force a $4 million contract with Salt Lake County and a company named Worldwide Environmental Products. The investigation found that John had a financial stake in this company and was having the county threatened with lawsuits so he could profit from it. John Swallow could potentially be indicted at any time."

An Ex-Con Who Says He Raised Funds For John Swallow Is Nowhere To Be Found On The AG's Campaign Records

By Eric S. Peterson

POSTED // AUGUST 7, 2013 -

Mimi's Cafe in Sandy isn't exactly a biker bar, but in April 2012, the family-friendly diner did play host to a crowd that might've been a little rougher around the edges than usual. While not decked out in leathers or sporting face tattoos, the crew that showed up that morning for breakfast was involved in an industry that's been the subject of increasing state and federal scrutiny.

These were men of the Online Business Opportunity (OBO) industry, a business community of telemarketers who pitch consumers across the country on what critics call too-good-to-be-true programs. These programs promise to teach people how to set up their own websites or build their own businesses, but often leave customers with nothing to show but maxed-out credit cards.

At this particular confab, OBO leaders met over omelets and coffee to get to know the man who some of them hoped would be the new leader of their pack: John Swallow, then a candidate for Utah attorney general.

The Mimi's breakfast was one of two Swallow fundraisers hosted and emceed by Robert Montgomery, a call-center owner with a checkered criminal past who got his start in the OBO industry as a salesman for IWorks, a St. George-based company whose founder, Jeremy Johnson, is currently under indictment for allegedly having defrauded thousands of Americans out of $275 million.

City Weekly has been reporting on companies like IWorks and their connections with the Utah Attorney General's Office since 2008. Members of the industry have donated heavily to Shurtleff's and Swallow's campaigns for various offices. The Attorney General's Office is tasked with prosecuting those same companies for consumer fraud if complaints are brought forward by the Utah Division of Consumer Protection. But the media and the public are left in the dark about a potential conflict of interest if a donation is never reported in the first place.

Companies that were invited to attend the fundraisers donated at least $27,750 to Swallow's campaign coffers, as noted on Swallow's campaign-disclosure documents. Montgomery says he paid for the costs of the fundraisers, including meals and raffle prizes. According to a former employee of Montgomery's business, Emmediate Credit Solutions, Montgomery spent roughly $2,000 on the fundraisers. But neither Montgomery nor Emmediate Credit Solutions (ECS) was reported on Swallow's official campaign records.

The purpose of campaign-finance disclosures is to give the public the chance to see how much a special interest gives a politician and decide for themselves whether the donation represents a show of support or a down payment on future back-scratching. The public can't make those determinations for themselves when donations aren't reported.

Swallow's campaign manager, Jason Powers, wrote via e-mail to City Weekly that "Attorney General John Swallow and his campaign are unaware of any political contribution, monetary or in-kind, received from Mr. Montgomery."

The mystery donation raises questions about Swallow's conduct while running for office. Swallow is already facing investigations from almost every level of government. Federal officials are investigating IWorks founder Jeremy Johnson's claim that Swallow helped facilitate a bribe of Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., to derail a Federal Trade Commission investigation into Johnson's company. Swallow is being probed by state investigators for the Johnson connection, as well as for receiving gifts from convicted white-collar criminal Marc Jenson. The Legislature has officially deputized a panel to investigate whether Swallow is fit to be a public servant. He's also being scrutinized by an outside law firm, contracted by the Lieutenant Governor's Office, to look into a complaint filed by progressive group Alliance for a Better Utah that says documents were inappropriately changed on Swallow's official conflict-of-interest records.

According to former employees, Montgomery and Swallow often met behind closed doors. During an ECS company meeting, Montgomery announced that Swallow would be able to keep federal regulators off his back.

Montgomery says that there was nothing nefarious in his relationship with Swallow. Montgomery says that Swallow asked him to introduce him to his associates in the industry, and his perhaps naïve vision was simply to support the right candidate for office.

"I just hoped too high is all," Montgomery says. "I wanted to build relationships in government to change the world and change the way our country and state is run ... all of it."

Desperate Circumstances

According to Montgomery's LinkedIn profile, he got his start in the OBO world at IWorks in St. George, working for Jeremy Johnson. Johnson was indicted in 2011 for allegedly having defrauded hundreds of thousands of Americans out of $275 million through IWorks by tacking hidden charges onto consumers' credit cards after they purchased a program from the company on how to apply for government grants.

The OBO industry markets itself as a kind of do-it-yourself resource—helping people who are in dire straits to help themselves by making money on the side, perhaps selling goods on eBay or launching their own Internet business. The bread and butter of the industry, critics say, are desperate people.

Gina DeMaria and her fiancé, Carley Smith, were in desperate circumstances in 2012 after having their credit pummeled as Smith battled in court with his former employer over a disability lawsuit.

Smith had worked cleaning up electric trains in Sacramento, Calif. He'd replace ruined seats and move heavy "vandal windows"—window shields that could be easily replaced if marred by graffiti—off the trains nearly every day. One day, while removing an engineer's seat from a train, he suffered a debilitating back injury. Smith couldn't afford to stop working, though, so for the next three years, he fought through the pain, using his upper body instead of his injured back.

"After three years of doing that, my arms just went numb," Smith says. "It got so bad, I couldn't even hold my arms on the steering wheel of my car."

A co-worker encouraged Smith to take his employer to court, which he did. After five years of expensive litigation, Smith got 100 percent disability and a sizable settlement from his former employer. But being unable to work during that time destroyed his credit and DeMaria's.

In summer 2012, several months after Smith won his settlement, the couple decided to buy a house but realized they needed to do something about their credit. They clicked on FHAHomeMortgages.com, which they thought was an official government website, and filled out a survey about their credit. They wouldn't find out until later that the site was a private website operated by something known in the OBO industry as a lead provider. Lead providers collect personal information to sell to companies like Robert Montgomery's Emmediate Credit Solutions, based in Murray.

DeMaria and Smith say that representatives from Emmediate Credit Solutions were soon calling and informing the couple that they would need to have their credit repaired before they could qualify for a federal home loan. DeMaria says they thought that they were speaking with a representative of the government at the time. They signed up for ECS's credit-repair program and, after paying roughly $100 in upfront fees, started having $59 deducted every month from their bank cards.

The company kept charging the couple for months while, they say, they saw no improvement in their credit score. When they complained to ECS, they say, the fees got knocked down to $39 and then $29 a month. ECS ultimately took $748 total from the couple before the couple terminated their relationship with ECS.

No one from ECS, the couple says, could show them that any work had been done to repair their credit.

"They say they'll do anything to fix our credit," DeMaria says. "But they just took our money."

Montgomery didn't recall the specifics of that case but says the number of complaints has gone down recently since the company created an online system for following the progress staff makes on clients' cases.

"Usually, if our clients are unhappy, we will refund them their money," Montgomery says. "We have a pretty liberal refund policy."

The couple did eventually get a full refund from ECS, but they say it didn't happen until after they told the company that a City Weekly reporter was asking about their experience.

A Business in the Shadows

According to former employees of ECS, the company had a history of doing well at signing clients up and billing them, but would regularly neglect to do any work on their behalf.

One former ECS employee, Rena Andrus, says the ECS business model was to sign clients up and then mail dispute letters to their creditors to challenge negative credit reports. But she says that through at least the first half of 2012, boxes of dispute letters would pile up and sit unmailed until Rob Montgomery would instruct staff to toss them in the garbage. According to Andrus and other former employees, the company kept billing clients even though they weren't doing work for them.

Montgomery says this never happened.

Employee X, who worked with Montgomery at Emmediate Credit Solutions and has asked to not be named for fear of reprisal from Montgomery, says it was practices like the unworked files that motivated Montgomery to become friendly with Swallow, who was then running for attorney general.

"Rob [Montgomery] was worried every day about the FTC coming and knocking on his door," Employee X says.

Andrus joined with Montgomery's Emmediate Credit Solutions in 2011 after leaving her job in medical sales. She started on the sales side of ECS, calling people up to sell them on the company's credit-repair services. She did well enough as a saleswoman that in early 2012, she was promoted to the business side of the company.

The company had an interesting division, she says. Salespeople on one side of the business sold the product without knowing how the other side of the business was actually helping—or not helping—clients.

When Andrus moved over to become an office manager and human-resources manager, she says, she was shocked to discover that the company was not following through on promises to send dispute letters to clients' creditors. She says boxes full of clients' information piled up, apparently left unmailed because, she says, the company would not invest in stamps needed to mail the filings. When the boxes stacked up too high, she says, the clients' information was thrown in the dumpster, and they would start "fresh." The process was repeated almost every month.

Andrus soon realized she had been selling clients on empty promises.

"Nothing was getting done. No credit repair was being done for them," Andrus says. "Half the stuff I told them was lies."

Andrus estimates that less than a third of the clients actually had any work being done for them.

"None of that stuff has gone on," Montgomery says, dismissing Andrus' claims as those of a disgruntled employee. "I gave her a human-resources/management position and she wasn't qualified to hold it, nor did she do a very good job, and so I terminated her for that."

Andrus, however, says she quit the company of her own choosing in June 2012 after being fed up with the company's lack of follow-through on clients' files.

In early 2012, Andrus says, she began to see a new face around the office: then-Chief Deputy Attorney General John Swallow. She says that on numerous occasions, Swallow appeared at the office and held closed-door meetings with Montgomery.

In one weekly meeting with executives of the company, Montgomery told her and others that having the future attorney general as an ally would mean that Swallow "would help to get the FTC to back off of companies that are 'aggressive' " like ECS, Andrus says. "That was [Montgomery's] wording."

She says that Montgomery proudly announced that he and Swallow "were working on things together so that they could keep the laws loose in Utah when it came to call centers and the kind of business Rob [Montgomery] runs," Andrus says.

Montgomery denies the claim. "I didn't meet with him a lot," he says. "His campaign manager just asked me, since I was a supporter, if I would invite my friends to support him and help fundraise for him."

He says his interest in Swallow was about supporting a pro-business candidate.

"There was nothing in it for my business; my hope was just that he would be a good person in office—to make things the way that they should be rather than just more and more regulations on different companies out there," Montgomery says.

Telemarketing licenses are one kind of regulation that helps the state keep track of companies that solicit by phone. According to Utah's laws on telephone solicitation, Montgomery's business shouldn't have been dialing the leads it got from FHAHomeMortgages.com without a telemarketing license—something that, according to the Utah Division of Consumer Protection, the company never applied for.

Montgomery says that while his company does do telephone solicitations, they're not required to have a telemarketing permit because he's licensed as a credit-repair company.

According to Consumer Protection, ECS is licensed and bonded as a credit-services organization, but does not have a telemarketing bond and license. Consumer Protection says the company should have a telemarketing license, and plans to investigate it further.

"A Ticking Time Bomb"

Ryan Jensen has been in the OBO industry since 2008. One of the first floors he worked for was Murray-based Vanuity where, Jensen says, he first met Rob Montgomery.

Montgomery, Jensen says, was fresh out of prison, but within a few weeks, he was running his own sales floor.

Jensen says he was blown away by Montgomery's merciless sales style.

“My experience with Rob is that he is a pompous, arrogant dude,” Jensen says. “He would get clients on the phone and beat the tar out of ‘em. Whether they were broke or not, he would force a damn credit card out of them.”

Employee X recalls that Montgomery was a good-natured jokester, but with a volcanic rage bubbling under his wisecracking surface. X says that when another ECS employee called to take time off work, Montgomery pulled the phone cord out of the wall and swept his own computer off his desk.

“He was like a ticking time bomb,” says Andrus, who says she saw him scream profanities at employees and denigrate female employees, calling them “hos” and “bitches.”

While Montgomery denies Andrus’ claims, he nevertheless does have a history of violence, though he’s keen to underscore that he’s since changed his life.

In 2003, Montgomery was indicted for felony possession of a firearm after his ex-wife killed herself with a firearm of his, which he wasn’t supposed to own because of previous felony convictions. He served four years in federal prison.

According to court documents, her suicide ended an abusive relationship with Montgomery. U.S. District Judge Ted Stewart noted in his 2004 decision to approve harsher sentencing for Montgomery that the “defendant engaged in a pattern of escalating violence against his wife, culminating in an incident just hours before her death.”

A July 2004 Salt Lake Tribune article on the proceedings quoted prosecutors saying that Montgomery had choked his wife into unconsciousness shortly before she took her life.

In Stewart’s decision, he also noted that Montgomery’s ex-wife had tried to kill herself three weeks prior to her death and that when she was released from the hospital, Montgomery refused to let her take her medication, deriding the treatment as “crazy pills.”

The judge’s decision also referenced Montgomery’s past, with Stewart writing that Montgomery’s “prior criminal history includes two felonies and numerous misdemeanors including assault against a police officer and carrying a concealed dangerous weapon. Defendant has a demonstrated history of violence and firearms violations combined with drug use.”

Speaking to his criminal record, Montgomery says it doesn’t have much bearing on his current line of work.

“I’ve never committed fraud or anything like that,” Montgomery says. “I changed my life and worked hard to do that, and I haven’t had any issues since. I’ve always done legit business, always have, always will. So far, [my criminal record] hasn’t affected me negatively ... it probably will if you go and publish all this crap, though.”

Friends of John Swallow

In April 2012, Montgomery began rallying his comrades in the dialing OBO industry to get behind Swallow for attorney general. He sent select industry players an e-mail invite to the fundraiser at Mimi’s Cafe, with Swallow’s picture and campaign logo and the message “Robert Montgomery and Attorney General Mark Shurtleff invite you to attend breakfast with Chief Deputy Attorney General John Swallow, Candidate for Utah Attorney General.”

The e-mail noted that donations were welcome and listed Swallow’s consultant Renae Cowley as a contact. The invitation closes by saying “Paid For by Friends of John Swallow.”

No such group is listed on Swallow’s campaign-disclosure forms as having donated to his campaign, nor is any such political-action committee or corporation registered with the elections office.

According to the Elections Office, Swallow’s campaign had for a time referred to itself as Friends of John Swallow. Swallow’s campaign-disclosure form does list spending $104 at Mimi’s Cafe in April, but it does not identify the expense as part of a fundraiser. Swallow’s campaign manager Jason Powers says that the campaign is unaware of any fundraising done by Montgomery.

But Montgomery says he paid for the costs of the breakfast fundraiser, as well as an earlier fundraiser in St. George. Rena Andrus, who helped Montgomery prepare the fundraiser, says that gifts, including at least two iPads, movie tickets, VIP Jazz tickets and a vacation getaway prize, were purchased to be raffled off to those who donated at the fundraiser.

Employee X estimates that for at least the breakfast meeting in Salt Lake City, the meals cost $30 to $40 per guest and there were more than a dozen people in attendance.

Jensen, who attended the event at Mimi's, says Montgomery emceed the event, introducing both Shurtleff and Swallow.

"Rob got up and he was like, 'Hey, we want you to all meet the attorney general and the future attorney general. This isn't a get-out-of-jail-free card, but we want them to know who you are and understand this industry.'"

Jensen says there was no mistaking the fact that the event was a fundraiser and says that Montgomery told those in attendance that they were seeking to raise $100,000 for Swallow's campaign.

Andrus, who did not attend the meeting, says she heard Montgomery say at the office that he had committed to Swallow that he would raise $100,000 for him.

It was this breakfast fundraiser that Jensen's business partner Aaron Christner, a call-center owner, referenced in a 2012 phone call with Swallow, first reported by City Weekly in May 2012. During the call, which Christner recorded, Swallow said that he planned to have the Attorney General's Office take over investigations from the Utah Division of Consumer Protection so that he could oversee not only prosecutions of fraud complaints, but the investigations as well.

Christner and Jensen feel that regulation of the industry is out of whack and that too many companies buy protection by allying themselves with the Attorney General's Office.

The Right Man in Office

While state and federal officials continue to investigate whether Swallow's actions crossed the line between unethical and illegal and the Legislature decides whether his conduct is befitting that of a public servant, the state is also looking into allegations of irregularities with Swallow's campaign-disclosure paperwork.

One complaint says that Swallow changed his conflict-of-interest paperwork after the legal deadline to conceal his interest in a company tied to the alleged bribery involving Jeremy Johnson and Sen. Harry Reid.

The paperwork irregularity in the case of Montgomery and his missing donation is just as troubling for advocates like David Irvine, an attorney associated with Utahns for Ethical Government and Alliance for a Better Utah.

Irvine says this kind of "off-the-books money" damages the integrity of the campaign-reporting system.

"Campaign-reporting laws are intended to make political money transparent," Irvine says. "It's not just that we want people to know where money comes from and who is providing it; we also want to know if the fact of providing that kind of money is purely to help elect a candidate or if there is some other agenda at work."

As for Montgomery, his only regret is that his adventure in politics ended on a sour note after watching scandal after scandal unfold involving Swallow and allegations of corruption.

"My main goal was just to put the right person in office to make some major changes in government," Montgomery says of Swallow. "But you see how that's turned out."
