Individual and Business Impact

Applicants for emergency medical services certificates will be required to pay for a criminal background check, at an additional cost of $25. Organizations receiving grants funds (either per-capita based or competitive) and high school emergency medical training programs could experience a decrease in available funding, since the bill allows an increase in administrative costs prior to the allocation to the above-mentioned organizations.

This bill also directs the Department to review all licenses to identify geographic overlays. Some providers might see their authorized service areas revised.
