(c) rules, policies, courses of study, agreements, and programs relating to local public education.

(~~f6~~5) The state may reject any attempt by the federal government or a national organization to direct or interfere with state sovereignty with respect to public education.

(~~f7~~6) As provided in this section, and in accordance with Subsection 53E-2-201(1)(c), parents and families are represented by their elected representatives, and act directly, and indirectly through their elected representatives, to exercise the rights described in this section as secured by the United States Constitution and the Utah Constitution.

(~~f8~~7) The freedom of speech of an elected official of the state, as a representative of the people, may not be restricted or impaired by a government officer or government entity, including a governing body of which the elected official is a member.

Section 2. Section 53E-2-402 is enacted to read:

53E-2-402. Right to protect child from objectionable instruction or material.

(1) In accordance with the rights and responsibilities of a parent, as described in Section 53E-2-401, a parent may opt out and withdraw the parent's child from the use of, or participation in, any public education matter or material that the parent determines objectionable, including curriculum, subject matter, textbooks, or activities identified by a parent as objectionable.

(2) School administration may not retaliate against a parent for exercising a right described in Subsection (1).
